FOREWORD.

The first issue of "THE SUFFRAGE ANNUAL AND WOMEN'S WHO'S WHO" contains as much authentic information concerning the Suffrage Societies and prominent women Suffragists as it is possible to obtain at the moment of going to press. It contains biographies of nearly 1,000 women and a selection of the many men distinguished in the Cause. No biography received, worthy of admission, has been omitted. Readers will find in "THE SUFFRAGE ANNUAL AND WOMEN'S WHO'S WHO" all useful information concerning women who have given themselves to the fight for the Vote.

Of biographies it will contain hundreds more next year. Many biographies—through difficulties experienced in getting into communication with their authors—having arrived too late for inclusion, a second edition may, therefore, be issued on an early date. For it and for the 1914 enlarged production we shall be pleased to receive communications as soon as convenient to contributors. No attempt to restrict the space of any contributor was made in the first issue.

Although the greatest care has been taken to ensure accuracy, we cannot accept responsibility for loss or damage arising out of errors, if any, in the letterpress. We regret that it was found impossible to include, as at first arranged, lists of officials of every branch or affiliated Society, together with particulars of their work; but we are willing to include in future issues this or any other improvement on the work that readers may suggest. Letters should not be addressed to our publishers, but direct to The Vectis Publishing Society, 29, New Bridge Street, London, E.C.

THE quiet, unruffled, self-poised operator, whose work is always on time—the one who shows no trace of “nerves” at the end of her day’s work—finds in the exclusive features of the modern Typewriter her greatest aid to promptness and assurance against “three o’clock fatigue.”

That feature is

Monarch Light Touch

Monarch Light Touch is a distinctive feature of the Monarch, and has a mechanical reason to back it up. It so greatly reduces muscular effort that using the Monarch Light Touch means more work from a given amount of energy: increased output, decreased cost of typewriting to the employer. Let us give you a demonstration of this and other Monarch advantages. Write for clearly Illustrated Descriptive Booklet A.

OFFICE HOURS 10 to 4.

In the autumn of 1908 the action of the Militant Societies was at its height, and the feeling for and against it was so strong that the justice of the demand seemed lost sight of in the feeling aroused by the tactics. The Actresses' Franchise League was founded to strengthen the number of those who simply believed that women should be enfranchised. The number of brilliant women who came forward as Presidents, Vice-Presidents and Members showed the keen interest that existed in the profession, their popularity as actresses helped to draw greater interest to the question, and their ability opened a new field for propaganda and served to illustrate the speeches and pamphlets of the earlier Suffrage societies in dramatic form.

The League is strictly neutral in regard to Suffrage tactics, and consists of persons who qualify for membership by being or having been connected with the theatrical profession in any of its branches, and by paying a minimum

The Artists' Suffrage League—the first of the Societies of Professional Women—was inaugurated in January, 1907, on the occasion when the National Union of Women's

The Selfridge Reading, Resting and Writing-rooms are Suffrage Societies organised the famous "Mud March," the first Women's Suffrage Procession.

The object of the League is to further the cause of Women's Enfranchisement by the work and professional help of artists. With this aim the League has published many illustrations, leaflets, and posters, which have been in continual demand in all parts of the country, and have played a part in General Elections and all by-elections since 1907. The posters of the Artists' League have also been constantly supplied to America for the use of the National Association, whose headquarters are in New York. They also played a part in the successful campaign in California.

Another important branch of the work undertaken by the League has been the designing and producing of many beautiful banners for the various Branch Societies and Federations of the National Union. These banners have been carried in numbers of Suffrage processions, and have served on the occasion of important political meetings in favour of the Suffrage to decorate the great halls in London and in large provincial cities.

Besides these banners, many other effective decorations have been devised by the Artists' Suffrage League for the various National Union demonstrations that have taken place. The decorative work for the Women's Trades' procession in 1909, when the International Congress took place in London, was perhaps the most unique of the various undertakings of the League. On this occasion a thousand women marched through London to the Albert Hall carrying emblems representing about 90 different trades, each trade being represented by a group of twelve bona fide workers, who had come from all parts of the country for the occasion. This procession, which crossed London at dusk, was illuminated by hundreds of coloured lanterns.

The Artists' League has in continual instances responded to demands from the National Union for special decorations, and has materially helped political demonstrations and done much to popularize the cause of Woman's Suffrage by bringing in an attractive manner before the public eye the long-continued demand for the vote.

Objects of the Committee :

To watch over the interests of Australian and New Zealand women under Imperial Legislation, and to promote their welfare generally from this side of the world. To help forward the Woman's Movement in every part of the British Empire.

The Australian and New Zealand Women Voters' Committee was formed in London in May, 1911, mainly through the energy of Miss Vida Goldstein, under the presidency of Lady Cockburn, supported by Lady Stout, by Lady McMillan and Miss Hodge (N.S.W.), Mrs. Boswell-Reid, Mrs. Meeson-Coates, Miss Murphy, and Mrs. W. J. Turner (V.), Miss H. D. Cockle (Q.), Mrs. Walter Duncan (S.A.), Mrs. Keith Adam and Miss Broadhurst (W.A.), Mrs. Gray, Mrs. McMillan, and Miss Isitt (N.Z.), and many other well-known Australian and New Zealand women. Miss Edith Quinlan, Hon. Secretary.

The Committee was formed to deal primarily with three questions:—

1. To represent to the Imperial Conference the disabilities of Australian and New Zealand women under the Naturalisation Act.

2. To represent to the Premier, Mr. Asquith, the loss of political status incurred by Australian and New Zealand women who come to live in Great Britain.

3. To make arrangements for an Australian and New Zealand contingent in the Women's Procession on June 17th.

The work of the Association has been both educational and political. A number of "At Homes" have been held at well-known houses in London, reports of which have appeared in the London and Australasian Press. In addition to efforts made by the Society towards Imperial naturalisation, instant action was taken with regard to the appearance, at the Great Anti-Suffrage Demonstration in the Albert Hall, of the Colonial Secretary, Mr. Lewis Harcourt. On the morning of that day the Executive despatched a letter to Mr. Harcourt, which ran :—

“ I am instructed by the Executive of my Committee to forward you the following resolution, which was carried unanimously at their monthly meeting this morning :—

“ That this meeting of the Executive of the Australian and New Zealand Women Voters' Committee deeply regrets that the Colonial Secretary should appear on the platform at an Anti-Suffrage Demonstration, holding as they do that his public opposition to the enfranchisement of women is a slight upon those two Dominions in which equal suffrage is an integral part of the Constitution.”

Mr. Harcourt did not reply.

A copy of Mr. Harcourt's speech was sent to the Premiers of Australia and New Zealand, together with a resolution passed by the Executive on March 13th, which ran as follows :—

“ That this meeting of the Executive of the Australian and New Zealand Women Voters' Committee (London) respectfully calls the attention of the Premiers of Australia and New Zealand to a speech of the Secretary of State for the Colonies, in the Albert Hall, London, on February 28th last, and asks to be informed whether the public condemnation of any Constitutional principle accepted in any of the self-governing Dominions is compatible with tenure of office of Colonial Secretary.”

The Association interested itself in the Criminal Law Amendment Bill, now an Act. It has also contributed much to the Press upon Suffrage matters, and particularly to the Standard and Standard of Empire.

ORIGIN.—This Society was founded by Miss Jeffrey and Miss Kendall, and was inaugurated at a public meeting in the Kensington Town Hall, on June 10, 1911. It almost immediately enrolled 200 members, and the number is steadily increasing.

OBJECT.—Its object is to band together Catholics of both sexes in order to secure for women the Parliamentary Vote on the same terms as it is, or may be, granted to men. It was realized that the world-wide character of the

If you are pleased with your purchases, so are Selfridge's—but not unless.

Women's Suffrage movement was being advanced by all nations, religions, and parties, according to various views, some of which in their side issues were opposed to Catholic teaching, which appeared to prejudice some Catholics against the whole question. Therefore, it became necessary that Catholic principles should be definitely recognised in the movement at large, and that Catholics themselves should realise that far from being contrary to the teaching of the Church, the extension of the Suffrage to women was completely in harmony with it. That Catholic women should have their own rallying ground from which they could associate and combine with all the other Suffrage societies, and that their Catholic interests should be equally known and safeguarded by all the Suffrage societies banded together for each other's protection. Also, as in the case of the Church of England, the Free Church, and the Jewish societies, each in its own sphere, they were best fitted to answer Catholic attacks from the Catholic standpoint.

METHODS.—These are strictly non-party and constitutional. Its active propaganda embraces all educational means such as holding meetings, debates, distribution of literature, newspaper correspondence, canvassing in constituencies, and recruiting, its aim being to educate those of its own Church. All Catholic women are eligible as members on payment of a minimum annual subscription of one shilling. Men are welcomed and invited to join as associates, but may not elect or be elected to the executive. Members and associates are asked to say each day one "Hail, Mary," and the invocation "Blessed Joan of Arc, pray for us," Blessed Joan being the Patron of the Society.

The Society's first public act was to walk in the Women's Coronation Procession of June, 1911, and they have since joined with all the other Societies in processions, demonstrations, and public meetings, either political, social or moral; they have been represented during the Congresses of their Church, and they have held many public and drawing-room meetings, etc.

The badge bears the fleur-de-lis of the Patron.

CIVIL SERVICE WOMAN SUFFRAGE SOCIETY.

(Officially Contributed.)

Hon. Secretaries :

B. M. RENDLE.

E. A. SMYTH.

Money Order Department, Manor Gardens, N.

It was known that a large number of women Civil Servants were in favour of the enfranchisement of women, but, as they belonged to different Suffrage Societies, their influence in their capacity of Civil Servants was not felt ; so it was decided that a Women's Civil Servants' Suffrage Society should be formed, which was done in November, 1911. The membership is about 600, consisting of women employed in the various Civil Service Departments in London. Branches are being formed also in Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Dublin.

It will pay you to read Selfridge's Newspaper Advertisements.

OBJECTS :

1. To obtain the Parliamentary Vote for women on the same terms as it is or may be granted to men.
2. To awaken interest in the movement for the enfranchisement of women.
3. To unite in one Society all women Civil Servants in sympathy with the movement, representative as they are of one of the largest and most important bodies of women workers in the country.

METHODS :

Educational and constitutional.

Membership fee, 3d.

N.B.—This society is not connected with any other outside the Service. Members of other societies are eligible.

OBJECTS :

To form a bond of union between all Conservatives and Unionists who are in favour of the removal of the sex disqualification and the extension of the franchise to all duly-qualified women. As far as possible to give active support to official candidates at elections when they are in favour of the enfranchisement of women. To work for women's enfranchisement by educative and constitutional methods consistent with Unionist principles. To maintain the principles of the Conservative and Unionist party with regard to the basis on which the franchise should rest, and to oppose manhood suffrage in any form.

The Association, though pledging itself not to oppose any official Unionist candidate yet, will not work as an Association for any candidate who is opposed to Women's Franchise.

The Association issues a quarterly review.

for unity to determine a united policy and action which all the constitutional Societies might adopt.

To strengthen its position, the Council has decided to admit Members, with deliberative but not voting power, from the various organisations working for women, and also to admit, on the same terms, persons who have shown themselves prominent and helpful in some special way and whose outlook on the whole question would therefore add to the breadth of view of the Council.

The resolution as to immediate policy has been confirmed, and is now passed as the basis for the future policy of the Council, a strong demand for a Government measure, to be followed by a persistent line of action should the amendments to be moved to the Franchise Bill fail to pass.

Selfridge's is the ideal store for the busy man.

To understand the reason for the founding of this Union, we must go back to June, 1911, to the great Suffrage procession at the time of the Coronation. Mrs. Mansell Moullin was the Hon. Organiser of the Welsh contingent in this procession, and she, with several other Welsh women thought it was a pity to let the enthusiasm die down, and that it would be advisable to found a Welsh Union called the Cymric Suffrage Union, to unite Welsh people of every shade of opinion to work for the speedy enfranchisement of women. At that time all the Suffrage societies were united in working for the Conciliation Bill. When this Bill failed to pass, owing to the action of the Government in bringing in a Manhood Suffrage Bill, the C.S.U. passed a resolution in which it was stated "That should the Reform Bill pass without the inclusion of women this Union will have to reconsider its policy."

There was a small minority on the Committee who were opposed to this Resolution, and Mrs. Mansell-Moullin, the Vice-President (feeling sure that a more progressive movement among Welsh people was necessary), decided to resign, and at once to start a new Union, under the name of the "Forward Cymric Suffrage Union," whose Members (men as well as women) would be pledged to work for no political party, and to oppose any Government that refuses the vote for women.

This Union was founded in October, 1912, and was supported at once by the majority of the Members of the Cymric Suffrage Union, and, in addition, has gained many other recruits who wished to join a Union with a strong policy. It has the same Hon. Secretary and Hon. Treasurer as the original C.S.U. Members have joined from North, Mid- and South Wales, and a branch has been started in the Vale of Edeyrnion with the Rev. Ivan Davies, Penrhos, Llandrillo, as Hon. Secretary. This branch extends from Llanuwchllyn to Corwen, and covers a large area. Three other branches are in course of formation in Wales.

The London Branch held an enthusiastic first meeting on November 19th, at which fifty Members were present, and intends to hold a public meeting on the first Monday

The Forward Suffrage Union was formed in October, 1908, for the purpose of concentrating the activities of Liberal women belonging to any Association affiliated to the Women's Liberal Federation, on their own enfranchisement. It was represented at the Hyde Park and Albert Hall Suffrage Demonstrations, and at the International Suffrage Congress at Stockholm. It accompanied the deputation to the Prime Minister and Mr. Lloyd George, on November 17th, 1911. The Union has conducted a Suffrage campaign in the County of Norfolk, and done much propaganda work.

MRS. FLEMING WILLIAMS, 2, Holmbury View, Springfield, Clapton, N.E.

This League was founded in October, 1910, by Mrs. Strickland, of Hastings, Rev. Hatty Baker, and Miss L. E. Turquand—the latter initiating it. The Rev. E. Clark and Rev. Hatty Baker were the first Secretaries. The present Secretaries—the Rev. C. Fleming Williams and Mrs. Fleming Williams—took office in December, 1911.

The object of the Society, as defined by its constitution, is “the advocacy of the enfranchisement of women on the same basis that men are or shall be enfranchised.” This advocacy is from the point of view that “Government by one sex only is un-Christian in principle.” The methods of the F.C.L. are religious and educational—the holding of services and meetings and distribution of literature expressing the religious and Nonconformist aspect of the Suffrage Movement. The F.C.L. has no official opinion on the methods of other Societies, and includes within itself members of all the larger ones. All men and women of Free Church principles of whatever denomination are accepted as members.

The work of the League lies, naturally, mainly among Nonconformists. Meetings are often held in Free Church Schoolrooms, even in the Churches themselves; sometimes with the Minister speaking or presiding. At nearly all meetings, Ministers are among the speakers. Hymns are generally sung and prayer offered. Efforts are also made to bring the question before the various Unions and Councils of the Federated Churches.

The key-note of the F.C.L. may be said to be the Puritan idea of respect for personality. According to the Christian Faith, men and women are equal, with equal moral responsibility, equal right to self-realisation, equal value as souls. The State refuses to recognise the personality of women, and is therefore at variance with Christianity, and must be brought into line.

The Jewish League for Woman Suffrage was formed in November, 1912. It was felt by a great number that a Jewish League should be formed to unite Jewish Suffragists of all shades of opinions, and that many would join a Jewish League where, otherwise, they would hesitate to join a purely political society.

OBJECTS AND METHODS.

1. The J.L.W.S. is a non-party organisation formed to demand the Parliamentary Franchise for women, on the same terms as it is, or may be, granted to men; and to unite Jewish Suffragists of all shades of opinion for religious and educational activities.

2. The League will carry on propaganda on constitutional lines, parallel with those of the existing Church, Catholic, Free Church and Friends' Leagues.

3. The League will emphasise the need for women's emancipation to secure the effective co-operation of men and women in combating social evils.

4. The J.L.W.S. will strive to further the improvement of the status of women in the Community and the State.

The desire for the improvement of the status of women in the Jewish Community implies a desire for the extension of voting power in religious organisations, the vote being, at present, limited to male members. The J.L.W.S. unites Suffragists of all shades of opinion in educational work.

The first drawing-room meeting of the League was held on November 15th, at 2, Orme Court, W., by kind permission of Mrs. Cohen, the Rev. Morris Joseph in the chair; speakers, The Hon. Mrs. Franklin, Mrs. Auerbach and Mrs. Herbert Cohen. At this meeting over fifty Suffragists of both sexes joined the League; and, since then, those numbers have increased to some hundreds, thus fully justifying the existence of the J.L.W.S.

The subscription is fixed at a low rate so as to enable Jewish Suffragists of all classes to join the League. Meetings are held and arranged for in all parts of London, for private houses, literary and debating societies, schools, etc.

Publications concerning the cause and its special interest for Jews and Jewesses are being issued by the League.

The badge of the League is a circular button with two interlaced triangles, and bearing a Hebrew inscription, taken from Proverbs, chapter XXI., verse 15, of which the translation is: "It is the Joy of the Righteous to do Justice." The colours are royal purple and celestial blue.

MEMBERSHIP.

All Jewish men and women who are in sympathy with the objects and methods are eligible for membership. The minimum subscription is fixed at threepence, but it is earnestly hoped that members will subscribe more liberally. Subscriptions should be sent to the Hon. Treasurer. Members are invited to communicate with the Hon. Secretaries if they are able to offer assistance.

women on the same terms as it is, or may be, granted to men.

Membership is open to graduates of the University of London, and to persons who are closely associated with the university in a teaching capacity or otherwise. Local centres are in existence in various parts of the country. The membership at the end of 1912 was over 850, and the number of local centres 29.

The Inaugural General Meeting was held in July, 1909, under the chairmanship of Dr. L. Garrett Anderson. In February, 1911, a memorial signed by 1,823 male members of Convocation, was forwarded to the Prime Minister, asking for the removal of the disability imposed on their women fellow-members of Convocation, whereby they are denied equal rights in the election of the representative of the University in Parliament. In May, 1911, Convocation declared itself by an overwhelming majority in favour of the admission of women graduates to equal Franchise rights in the University. These events are in keeping with the traditions of London University that its rights and privileges should be independent of sex.

The London Graduates' Union works, however, for the general franchise of citizens, as well as for the University Franchise of graduates as such. To this end it has co-operated with other societies whenever deemed advisable. Thus, in 1912, it sent representatives to the Federated Council of Suffrage Societies.

The modern Women's Movement, of which the London Society for Women's Suffrage forms a part, may be said to have originated in 1855, with the presentations of Petitions to Parliament on the injustice of the law respecting the property and earnings of married women, organised by Miss Barbara Leigh Smith (Mrs. Bodichon) and Miss Bessie Raynor Parkes (now Madame Belloc). The same ladies, in 1858, founded the Englishwoman's Journal, and in the following year, the Society for Promoting the Employment of Women was started by Miss Jessie Boucherett and others. In 1860 a Ladies' Institute was opened at 19, Langham Place, London, and this had become a rallying place for those interested in the advancement of women when John Stuart Mill entered Parliament. By this band of women 1,499 signatures were obtained to a Petition to the House of Commons for Votes for Women, presented by Mr. Mill on June 7th, 1866.

Organisation crystallised quickly, after the reading of papers upon Women's Suffrage by Mrs. Bodichon at the Social Science Congress in October, 1866. A committee was formed in London and issued a circular giving the text of a Petition to be signed by women householders, together with full particulars as to the qualification which should entitle women to vote. A Manchester Committee, formed about the same time, joined in this work. The London Committee was dissolved in 1867 and a new committee was formed by Mrs. P. A. Taylor, which developed into the London National Society for Women's Suffrage. This Society, in the year 1867, joined with the Manchester and Edinburgh Societies and became the National Society for Women's Suffrage, a brief history of which appears on another page. In 1872, a Central Committee was formed in London and the former committee also continued its work until, in 1887, the two were united. In 1889 a separation again took place, followed later by an amalgamation of the two, at first known as the Central Society for Women's Suffrage.

The area of work of the Central Society extended over the whole of the South of England, part of the Midlands and Wales, but as the number of societies in other parts of the country increased, the organisation of the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies became more complete, and the Central Society decided to confine its own field of work to the London area and to encourage its provincial branches to form themselves into independent societies and to become constituent members of the National Union. In pursuance of this policy the Society's name was changed in 1907, when it took its present title of the London Society for Women's Suffrage. Since this policy was adopted twenty-nine such independent societies have been thus formed by the Society outside its immediate area, and among them are some of the strongest and most active in the National Union. It is remarkable that in spite of this fact the membership and funds of the Society have constantly increased, the former rising from under 2,000 in 1907 to about 4,000 in 1912, and the latter from £1,161 in 1907 to £4,167 in 1912.

The London Society is now the largest of the constituent societies which form the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies. Its work extends over the metropolitan area and suburbs of London, in which it has fifty local branches and committees. Besides the membership mentioned above, it has in the last six months enrolled as non-paying supporters some 5,000 "Friends of Women's Suffrage" living in the London area.

The Society demands the vote for women on the same terms as it is, or may be, granted to men. It pursues this object by every constitutional means in its power. It has no party. It carries on work of a constitutional character in its own area, and is further concerned in the organisation of great national demonstrations held in London. During 1912, in addition to the Parliamentary business entailed by the many constituencies in the metropolitan area, the

It is easier to enter Selfridge's Bargain Basement than to leave it.

Society has held a very large number of public meetings, indoors and out, drawing-room meetings, lectures and debates, and has organised two meetings of a national character in the Albert Hall, at which sums amounting to over £12,000 were raised.

The offices at 58, Victoria Street, S.W., form a centre for information and for dissemination of literature. Weekly receptions are held during the greater part of the year at a convenient place of meeting; at these all visitors are welcome, and cards of invitation may be obtained from the Secretary.

The Men's League for Women's Suffrage was formed in March, 1907, with the object of bringing to bear upon the movement the electoral power of men. Its object then was, and has remained, "to obtain for women the vote on the same terms as those on which it is now, or may in the future, be granted to men." While adhering to this as the ultimate ideal, it has supported every measure which tended in that direction, though it might not achieve the whole object at once.

The membership has steadily increased, and most of the distinguished men who support the Cause have become members of it. Branches have been formed in various parts of the country, and especially in the large towns and University cities.

The needs of the modern woman are carefully studied at Selfridge's.

Its policy has throughout been constitutional, and while the League has steadfastly declined, as a body of men, to judge between the policies of other Societies, it has striven to work, where possible, with all Societies in a constitutional manner.

It leaves to the discretion of its members the use which they shall make of their votes, though for a brief period, during which the Liberal Government declined to grant facilities for various private members' measures, it adopted a policy of opposition to Government candidates. From the moment that the Prime Minister promised facilities for the Conciliation Bill, it reverted to its normal policy. On the withdrawal of the Reform Bill the following resolution was passed unanimously by the Committee: "The Executive Committee of the Men's League for Women's Suffrage records its emphatic condemnation of the Parliamentary mis-management of the Franchise question; it holds that experience has proved that under a divided Cabinet no free vote can be obtained on the merits of Women's Suffrage; it recalls the fact that the Conciliation Bill was destroyed by Liberal and Irish members of the Coalition, who feared the splitting of the Cabinet and the embarrassment of the Prime Minister; it sees no reason to anticipate a better fate for another private member's Bill, and pledges itself to do its utmost to obtain a Government measure, and in particular to oppose any further extension of the vote to men until the claims of women are met."

The League has, therefore, confined itself in the main to propagandist work, and has held a very large number of meetings in all parts of the country, including great demonstrations in the Queen's Hall, in Trafalgar Square, and in Hyde Park. It has also pursued steadily the policy of bringing pressure to bear upon members of Parliament and Parliamentary candidates through their constituents, by letter and by deputation. A large number of pamphlets and handbills have been issued from time to time, the most important and successful being the "Handbook on Women's Suffrage," published in the autumn of 1912, in view of the amendments to the Government's Reform Bill. This handbook is acknowledged to be the most comprehensive and the most authoritative exposition of the state of affairs at the end of 1912.

In September, 1912, the League, which had been instrumental in forming similar Men's Leagues in other countries, and in establishing the International Men's Alliance for Women's Suffrage at the Stockholm Conference of 1911, held in London the first International Congress of Men. This Congress, which had the cordial support of other Societies, was attended by a considerable number of the most eminent men who support the Cause all over the world, and was a great success in every respect.

An important function of the League has been the supplying of speakers for meetings of other societies. The demand has grown with great rapidity, as is shown by the fact that in the period, October—December, 1912, the League was represented at not less than 400 meetings, one or two members having spoken more than 60 times.

A monthly paper (price 1d.) is issued by the League, the chief feature of which is the Political Summary by Mr. H. N. Brailsford. A register is kept and published from time to time of all the eminent men who have declared themselves in favour of the cause. The latest work, together with copies of the "Handbook" above mentioned, was forwarded to all favourable Members of Parliament on January 16th, 1913.

The Men's Political Union for Women's Enfranchisement was formed as a result of a growing conviction among men, as well as women, that the delay in removal of the sex disqualification from the Parliamentary franchise was due to the determined indifference of the Government rather than to any considerable opposition in the country. As a consequence of "An Appeal to Men" written by Mr. V. D. Duval, appearing in Votes for Women, the inaugural meeting of the Union was held in the Eustace Miles Restaurant on January 13th, 1910. Mr. Frank Rutter presided, other speakers including Messrs. Nevinson, Brailsford, and Duval, and a resolution expressing the determination of the men present to vote against Government candidates at the forthcoming General Election was unanimously agreed to. An organising Committee was formed, with an anti-Government Militant policy, and offices were opened later at 13, Buckingham Street, Strand, London, W.C.

The first branch of the Union was inaugurated in Birmingham, 1910. Later, branches were also formed in Manchester, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Dundee, Newcastle, Bradford, Leicester, Bristol, Reading, Oxford, Scarborough, Hull, Norwich, and Leeds. A successful men's demonstration was organised by the Union in Hyde Park in July, 1910, at which Mr. Keir Hardie, M.P., Mr. S. Goldman, M.P., and others spoke. There were four platforms from which resolutions calling on the Government to give full facilities for the Conciliation Bill in 1910 were carried unanimously.

Hundreds of meetings have been held under the auspices of the Union in different parts of the country, and, in addition, large mass meetings have been held at the Queen's Hall, Caxton Hall, and Kensington Town Hall. Among the numerous other ways in which the Union has helped the cause may be mentioned—chalking pavements, stewarding, letters to M.P.'s, and the Press.

From time to time, Members of the Union have questioned Cabinet Ministers at public meetings, and been subjected to brutal treatment in consequence. On one occasion—November 26th, 1910—Mr. Alfred Hawkins had his leg broken in two places during his forcible ejection from Mr. Churchill's meeting. An action was brought by the Union against the Chairman and Committee of "The Bradford League of Young Liberals" and heard at the Leeds Assizes by Mr. Justice Avory, and Mr. Hawkins was awarded £100 damages.

A deputation of the Union waited on Mr. Lloyd George at Whitefield's Tabernacle on October 15th, 1911, at which Messrs. Cameron-Swan, Franklin, and Duval were present.

Many of the Members—including Mr. V. D. Duval (twice), Mr. G. Jacobs, Mr. A. G. Abbey, Mr. H. Franklin (twice), Mr. W. Ball, Mr. C. Gray, Mr. A. Macdougall, and Mr. M. Wilks—have been imprisoned through their support of the Militant policy, which policy the Society intend to pursue until women have been enfranchised.

The National Industrial and Professional Women's Suffrage Society is a society composed of women workers of all grades, and of others interested in the industrial aspect of the Suffrage question. With this Society is associated the Lancashire and Cheshire Women Textile and other Workers' Representation Committee and the Manchester and Salford Women's Trade and Labour Council. The Textile Committee was founded at the time of the general election in 1905 with the primary object of running a working women's Suffrage candidate for Parliament, at the Wigan election. Their candidate, Mr. Thorley Smith, was second in a three-cornered fight, polling 2,205 votes. The Women's Council has a political department for Suffrage work and for watching industrial legislation on behalf of the women workers.

These three Societies have fought for women's right to work as well as to vote, and it is mainly owing to their exertions in the last few years that many thousands of women (barmaids, dangerous performers, pit-brow women) were saved from being turned out of their work by direct Act of Parliament. The fight is recurrent and very bitter, and proves the absolute necessity of the franchise for the industrial safety of the women workers. The Societies were the first to take a petition for the Suffrage from the women graduates of the United Kingdom. They have also organised enormous petitions from women in the textile trades, the Potteries, the chain makers, the tailor-esses, etc. They have taken many deputations of women in trades to Cabinet Ministers. In the autumn of 1912, at their request, a quarter of a million working men appointed official delegates from their Trade Unions to bring the fact of their support of Women's Suffrage before the Cabinet.

The important part of the Societies' work is the effort to spread by many pamphlets and meetings in all parts of the country an understanding of the industrial side of Suffrage questions, and the effect of various modern legislative proposals on the interests of working women. These pamphlets may be had at 5, John Dalton Street, Manchester, by anyone interested. The Women's Trade Council, which is primarily a Federation of Trade Unions in Lancashire, has formed for its Members and other working women a Women's Insurance Society under the National Insurance Act, which is entirely run by its women officials, to secure the maximum amount of benefit for women, and through their representative on the National Advisory Committee, to uphold the views and interests of the women workers in this important matter.

The League, founded by Miss M. A. Broadhurst, aims at furthering social and political reforms on a non-party basis. Membership of the League is open on equal terms to both men and women, but it is the intention of the Executive, in their work for furthering necessary reform, to give adequate expression to the interests and political aspirations of women. It is for this reason that the leaders are at present concentrating their energies on work for the extension of the Suffrage to duly qualified women, for they consider that equal citizenship with men in wielding the power of the Parliamentary Vote is the most vital and important of the reforms demanded by women, and the only sure foundation for their future effective political action. A beginning has, however, been made in obtaining and classifying information as to existing social and industrial conditions, for the purpose of putting it to practical use when the vote for women is won. Already the League has established an important new department of three-fold activity—(a) Publishing Department, (b) Intelligence Bureau, (c) A Press Agency—which will have a strong influence on the whole movement. In particular, constant effort is being made to bring existing institutions into direct contact with the living and progressive political work of the League, and in this way, not only to further unity and co-operation of activity among women, but also to broaden and strengthen the political side of their work.

The chief method is that of bringing the political machinery of the country into direct connection with the political needs of men and women, as represented by the work of the League. This is brought about by organised and personal work amongst members and officials of the House of Commons and the Government, carried out in close relation to the work amongst the active party organisations in the various Parliamentary constituencies. These political organisations, that exist for the purpose of organising and giving expression to the political ideals of the country, as well as directly furthering legislative work, are so brought into living touch with the women's political point of view; and by means of addresses and other influence, these large bodies of organised voters all over the kingdom are induced to exert a strong pressure on their members at Westminster and on the Government.

Other methods, such as the holding of public political meetings, the developing of a strong social side, organised educative work through literature and lectures, the training of political workers, are an important part of the activities of the League. Also the leaders believe that a weekly paper, run on broad political lines, and which will give critical and constructive expression to their ideals is a much-felt want, and they hope that before long they will receive an amount of support that will enable them to carry out this project.

The first Women's Suffrage Societies (which at a later date united to form the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies) were founded in the year 1867, in Edinburgh, London, and Manchester; and, in 1888, in Birmingham and Bristol. These five original societies worked in much larger areas than just their own towns, and very soon had many branches under their care.

From the very first the societies commanded powerful support, as may be judged from the list of influential people who spoke at the Annual Meeting of the London Society in July, 1869, only two years after the Society was formed. Amongst the speakers at that meeting were John Stuart Mill, Rev. Charles Kingsley, Mr. Henry Fawcett, M.P., Mrs. Henry Fawcett, Lord Houghton, Mr. John Morley, Mr. Peter Taylor, M.P., Mrs. Peter Taylor, Sir Charles Dilke and Mr. James Stansfield, M.P. These speakers were enthusiastically hopeful, affirming that the country was already converted, that the question had now passed out of the stage of ridicule into that of practical politics, and that a measure of such palpable justice could not be long delayed. It was only two years since John Stuart Mill's amendment to the Representation of the People Bill, to leave out the word "man" and substitute "person" had been defeated by a majority of 123, but during this interval a great deal of work had been done by the societies, both in Parliament and in the country, and the speakers all thought that the cause had been immensely strengthened. During the Session of 1868 no fewer than 75 petitions had been presented to Parliament, with nearly 50,000 signatures, and three or four times that number had been presented during the first six months of 1869.

It was at this meeting in 1869 that Mrs. Fawcett moved the resolution to which the whole of the National Union Societies have adhered ever since: "That this Society pledges itself to use every lawful (the italics are not in the original) means to obtain the extension of the Franchise to women. . . ."

The other societies were equally strong in their beginnings, Miss Flora Stevenson being the head of the Edinburgh Society, and Miss Lydia Becker of the Manchester Society. Both of these ladies were members of the first School Boards, and were continuously re-elected until their deaths.

It is only possible in this brief survey of the work and growth of the National Union, to mention some of the principal activities in which its supporters engaged as time went on.

In May 1870, Mr. Jacob Bright carried the second reading of his Women's Suffrage Bill (the first Women's Suffrage Bill) by 121 votes to 91, but the Bill did not get into Committee. From that year till 1884 the Societies in the National Union redoubled their efforts, using every "lawful" means to bring pressure to bear, for they were told by their political supporters that when a new Liberal Government came in it would certainly deal with the question of representation, and that then the claims of women would be listened to. We learn from those who organised the work in those early days that large public meetings were held up and down the country of a most enthusiastic nature—quite as crowded as those which are held now—and very quickly more Societies were formed in the Union. In those days, too, the Press appears to have taken more initiative in the work that was going on, for we read in the National Union's Report of 1883 that able articles and notices in support of the movement had appeared in the "Daily News," "Daily Telegraph," "Daily Chronicle," "Pall Mall Gazette," "Globe," "Echo," "Evening News," "Morning Advertiser," "Weekly Dispatch," "Weekly Budget," "Westminster Gazette," "Manchester Examiner," "Christian Union," "Hull Eastern Morning News," "Nottingham Daily Express," "Bradford Observer," "Bradford Daily Telegraph," "Leeds Mercury," "Birmingham Daily Post," "Darlington Northern Echo," "Sussex Daily News," "Belfast Evening Telegraph," "Aberdeen Journal," "Northern Whig," "Dundee Advertiser," "Liverpool Daily Post," "Liverpool Mercury," "Christian Chronicle," "Sunderland Daily Echo," "Inverness Northern Chronicle," "Plymouth News," and many other papers. By this time also several Municipal Councils had presented petitions to Parliament in support of the women's cause. In 1884 the first conference of Members of Parliament was organised in the House, and the Trades Union Congress at its meeting at Aberdeen, while the final stages of the Reform Bill then before the House were still pending, passed a resolution with only three dissentients: "That this Congress is strongly of opinion that the Franchise should be extended to women rate-payers."

In spite of all this work entered upon so hopefully, Mr. Woodall's Women's Suffrage amendment to the Reform Bill of 1884 was defeated, 104 Liberals, pledged supporters of Women's Suffrage, voting against it at Mr. Gladstone's bidding.

Notwithstanding the crushing blow of the defeat of Mr. Woodall's amendment, the work of the National Union went on. At the General Election of 1885 the National Union may be said to have begun its work at elections, for during this election candidates were approached and questioned, and the Union afterwards reported that 314 known friends had been returned to Parliament. Since then there has always been a majority in the House in favour of some measure of Parliamentary enfranchisement being extended to women. From this time onwards the National Union steadily increased in strength and continued in its task of educating and converting the country, and in promoting the numerous Women's Suffrage Bills and resolutions which came before the House. Besides resolutions, thirteen Bills have been introduced into the House of Commons, of which seven passed their second reading. It is estimated that over one million signatures have been obtained to the numerous petitions and appeals, and that the number of petitions must amount to at least two thousand; and through all these years meetings were held throughout the country.

When, in December, 1909, Mr. Asquith re-affirmed on the eve of the General Election his declaration made two years before, that the Reform Bill would be so drafted as to admit of a Women's Suffrage amendment, and that the House would be left free to vote on this amendment without the intervention of the Party Whips; and when he further stated that this declaration would hold good in the ensuing Parliament, the National Union considered that his pronouncement brought the question before the country in a definite and unmistakable manner, and in order further to bring it forward during the General Election of December, 1909 and January, 1910, the National Union organised a Voter's Petition. Over 280,000 voters signed their names and addresses to this petition, adding their polling number in order that the signatures could easily be verified as those of bona-fide voters. These signatures were in most cases obtained on polling day by women standing outside the polling booths and asking the voters to sign as they came out. At this election over 250 candidates mentioned Women's Suffrage in their election addresses, and over 400 of the Members returned to Parliament were in favour of Women's Suffrage.

In 1910 was formed the Conciliation Committee, consisting of Members of the House of Commons of all parties, and from the time when they first framed their Bill, through the passage of its second reading on July 12th, when it obtained a majority of 110, through its second reading on May 5th, 1911, when its majority was 167, to its final stage in February, 1912, when for Party considerations Members who were pledged to support it backed out of their promises, the National Union turned all the organisation at its disposal into the channel of strengthening the efforts of the Conciliation Committee. For although the Conciliation Bill did not fully meet the National Union's demand for the vote "on the same terms as it is, or may be granted to men," it was realised that the grant of the suffrage to any women would break down the sex barrier, and the Union therefore supported this Bill as wholeheartedly as the others that had gone before. It is estimated that the meetings held by the different Suffrage organizations in support of the Conciliation Bill amounted to at least 5,000 indoor meetings. Outdoor meetings were too numerous to be kept count of, numbering during the summer and autumn of 1910, two or three hundred a week. The National Union also brought the matter before local authorities, with the result that Resolutions in favour of the Conciliation Bill were passed by 140 town and other local Councils.

In November, 1911, Mr. Asquith announced the intention of the Government to bring in the Reform Bill during the next Session. The National Union then concentrated its efforts on ascertaining the possibilities of the introduction of Women's Suffrage amendments. At a deputation received by Mr. Asquith on November 17th, he answered in the affirmative the four following questions put to him by Mrs. Fawcett :—

1. Is it the intention of the Government that the (Reform) Bill shall go through all its stages in 1912 ?

Certainly it is our intention. We hope to carry it through that year.

2. Will the Bill be drafted in such a way as to admit of any amendments introducing women on other terms than men ?

Certainly.

3. Will the Government undertake not to oppose such amendments ?

Certainly.

4. Will the Government regard any amendment enfranchising women, which is carried, as an integral part of the Bill in all its stages ?

Certainly.

Mr. Asquith said further : It is perfectly consistent with the self-respect and the best traditions of our public life that in relation to a question which divides parties, not only the head of the Government but the Government itself, should say that if the House of Commons on its responsibility is prepared to transform or extend a measure which we are agreed in thinking necessary—a measure for the franchise as regards men—and to confer the franchise on women, we shall not only acquiesce in that proposal but we shall treat it as the considered judgment of Parliament, and make ourselves responsible for carrying it out.

On receiving these replies the Societies in the National Union immediately set to work, and are now working, to gain support for the Women's Suffrage amendments to the Reform Bill.

The National Union now numbers over 400 societies, some of which are very large, with several branches attached. It has between thirty and forty thousand annual subscribers, and has raised during 1912, over £30,000 to carry on its work. As its organisation increases, it grows more rapidly, and new societies are now being formed at the rate of about two a week.

The constitution is a democratic one. Each Society sends representatives to the meetings of its General Council, the number of representatives being based on the number of the Society's subscribing members. The Council decides on the policy to be pursued, and neither the policy nor any rule can be altered except at a Council meeting. The Council also elects its Hon. Officers and Executive Committee each year by ballot. The Societies are now, for purposes of organisation, grouped into Federations of Societies, which are so mapped out as to cover every constituency in England, Scotland and Wales.

The object and methods of the National Union are to promote the claim of women to the Parliamentary vote on the same terms as it is or may be granted to men, by the means of the organisation of Women's Suffrage Societies on a non-party basis. To affiliate these societies in one Union which shall bring the pressure of united action to bear in Parliament, and to organise them in Federations which shall carry on the agitation throughout the country by every constitutional means within their power.

If you are pleased with your purchases, so are Selfridge's—but not unless.

The policy of the National Union at elections has hitherto always been to support the best friend of Women's Suffrage irrespective of his party views. Partly, however, in consequence of the failure of Liberal Members to fulfil their pledges with regard to the Conciliation Bill, but chiefly owing to the fact that the Labour Party have made Women's Suffrage a definite part of their programme, the Union has developed this policy in favour of supporting Labour candidates (who are individually staunch friends) against all Liberal candidates—with the exception of tried Liberal friends. It being clear that a candidate who will have the backing of his Party on this question when he gets into the House is more to be relied on than a man who, although personally prepared to support Women's Suffrage, may be ordered by his Party Whip into the Lobby against it. For the purpose of furthering this extension of the policy a special fund of money is being raised, and a special committee has been formed to deal with it, called the "Election Fighting Fund Committee."

The N.C.S.W.S. was founded in January, 1910, in order to unite all suffragists who believe in the anti-Government election policy, who desire to work by constitutional means, and to abstain from public criticism of other suffragists whose conscience leads them to adopt different methods.

Premises were obtained in a central position at 8, Park Mansions Arcade, in April, 1910, and the Society took part in London by-elections during that year and opened Committee rooms in three constituencies during the General Election.

Selfridge's is a Club and Rendezvous as well as a Store.

In April, 1911, the premises were enlarged by the addition of the shop next door.

In the spring of this year the anti-Government policy was held in abeyance, the N.C.S.W.S. in common with all other Suffrage Societies, being of opinion that reliance might be placed on Mr. Asquith's promise to give effective facilities to the Conciliation Bill in the Session of 1912.

In November, Mr. Asquith announced his intention to introduce a Manhood Suffrage Bill which, in the opinion of the N.C.S.W.S. absolutely destroyed the chances of the Conciliation Bill. The Society accordingly reverted to the anti-Government policy and in 1912 took part in various by-elections and supported Mr. Lansbury at Bow and Bromley.

In pursuance of its policy of working with all other societies whenever possible, the Society has taken part in almost all the joint demonstrations and processions organised by other societies in 1910, 1911 and 1912.

Weekly meetings are held at 8, Park Mansions Arcade on Tuesday afternoons at 3 p.m.

The growth of the Society has been steady and continuous, several organisers are now employed and many branches have been formed and meetings held throughout the country.

The People's Suffrage Federation was constituted in October, 1909, by a group of men and women, including some well-known Liberals and a number of prominent people belonging to Labour organisations, with Mr. A. F. Peterson, K.C., as Chairman of the General Committee, and an influential list of supporters; while two women already sufficiently busy in connection with Labour organisation—Miss Mary Macarthur and Miss Margaret Llewelyn Davies—acted as joint Hon. Secretaries so long as was necessary to establish the Society. It was the outcome of a strong belief on the part of the promoters that the enfranchisement of women—being a part of the movement towards a truly representative and democratic government—could best be carried through in alliance with the progressive forces in politics, and could only be realised in a really effective manner by the reform of the franchise in the sense of adult suffrage. At the present time (December, 1912)

The foundation of the House of Selfridge is its

the importance of franchise reform to women is widely recognised. In the first place, the claim of married women to the vote is generally acknowledged to be as strong as that of single women or widows, and it is now generally understood that the ordinary married woman, who has not a house or property of her own, would not be qualified as a voter by the opening of the existing franchises to women. Further, it has become evident that, while the unmarried workman—who very commonly lodges with a working-class household—is frequently deprived of the vote by the restrictions of the present franchise, these restrictions would operate very much more hardly in the case of the unmarried working woman. At the time, however, when the People's Suffrage Federation started, the advocacy of these views met with much opposition; and the necessity of an organised effort to put forward the case of adult suffrage was strongly felt by the promoters of the Federation. Manhood suffrage was approaching, they foresaw; and womanhood suffrage must be placed beside it in the democratic programme.

Shortly after the last General Election the Society's prospectus was issued. In it the support of some 400 societies was announced, and the names of 110 Members of Parliament, forming a Parliamentary Council connected with the Federation, were given. Mr. Arthur Henderson, M.P., became Chairman, and Mr. Walter Rea, M.P., and Mr. George H. Roberts, M.P., Hon. Secretaries of this Council; and a most important step taken by the Federation was the organizing of a deputation from the Parliamentary Council to present to the Prime Minister a memorial asking for the introduction of an Adult Suffrage Bill. This memorial was signed by nearly the whole of the Parliamentary Council and by several Members of Parliament not on the Council. The deputation presenting it was introduced by Mr. Henderson (November 7th, 1911), and the Prime Minister, in his answer, announced the approaching introduction of the Franchise and Registration Bill and his intention of leaving the question of the inclusion of women's enfranchisement in the Bill to the decision of the House of Commons.

The People's Suffrage Federation has since continued its agitation for the equal inclusion of women in the Bill, which, as it at present stands, would grant virtual adult suffrage to men, the six months' period of qualification being, however, regarded by the Federation as too long. The Federation's methods of propaganda, in addition to the usual methods, are to invite societies to affiliate or to pass resolutions in favour of adult suffrage, to address societies' meetings, and to hold delegates' conferences representing associations interested in the Franchise question from the democratic standpoint. The Secretary, Mr. Edward McGegan, will give information and advice as to affiliation, individual membership, the formation of branches, and the general work of the Federation.

THE "QUI VIVE" CORPS.

(Officially Contributed.)

The Corps provides a means whereby all Suffragists may work together. As it is not advisable for every Society now demanding the enfranchisement of women to unite on a common policy—because some cover more ground by working on different lines and in various directions—it becomes necessary to provide some organisation which enables these Societies to turn their members out in full and united strength on certain occasions. For this purpose the "Qui Vive" can always depend upon a large percentage of women from every existing Society, who have undertaken to turn out at any moment and rally at any given spot. Being a mobile force, the "Qui Vive" is not divided into local branches, but is worked entirely with regard to the means of communication and the railway lines. Although only just started, the "Q.V." has already done good work in hitherto neglected districts, and has given proof of the liberal spirit by which it is animated in offering its services to different Societies impartially and whenever they required extra workers for any definite purpose.

Members of the "Qui Vive" are pledged to abstain from any "militant" action, and to refrain from criticising the methods of any Suffrage Society whilst actually wearing the "Q.V." uniform of brown with green cockade and badge. When not wearing this uniform, they naturally retire into private life so far as the "Q.V." is concerned, and are free to work for whatever Society they may belong to.

The "Qui Vive" elect their own officials in the different districts where Corps are formed. The Secretary pro tem. is Mrs. R. C. Bentinck, 78, Harley Street, W., from whom all particulars may be obtained, and the London depôt is at 8, Park Mansions Arcade, Knightsbridge.

This League was formed at a public meeting, held in the Goold Hall, Edinburgh, on 11th March, 1912, to express the recognition by the churches of the spiritual equality of the sexes, and the justice of the principle of their political equality.

A devotional service was held on Sunday afternoon, 26th May, in the Queen's Hall, Edinburgh, when the Rev. L. MacLean Watt, B.D., Minister of St. Stephen's Parish Church, gave an admirable and convincing address, which has since been printed by the League, and is being widely circulated.

During the summer, literature regarding the League was sent to the secretaries of guilds and other societies connected with the principal churches throughout Scotland, as a result of which members joined from many different towns and villages. A resolution—"That this League protests against the non-inclusion of women in the Franchise Reform Bill now before Parliament"—was sent to each member of the Cabinet and to each Scottish M.P. A meeting to consider the religious aspect of the women's movement is to be held on 12th March next, in Edinburgh, when prominent ministers of various denominations are expected to take part.

The Union was founded in January, 1909, on a non-party basis to assist in promoting the cause of Women's Suffrage. It has for its object the extension of the parliamentary franchise to women on the same terms as it is, or may be, granted to men.

Its membership is open to men or women who have graduated at either a home or a foreign university or whose names are on the medical register, and to women who hold the equivalent of a university degree. At the last annual meeting the membership was 307. Besides the graduate Members the Women's Suffrage Societies of University Students at each of the four Scottish Universities are affiliated, making an additional membership of 234.

The Union has no election policy but confines its work to propaganda for Women's Suffrage. Its energies have been chiefly given to carrying on a propaganda mission in the outlying districts of Scotland, mostly in ground unbroken by any of the Suffrage societies, and to supplying speakers on the subject of Women's Suffrage to literary and political societies. Propaganda meetings for students and others are also held from time to time at the University towns. The Union was the first to introduce the question in the counties of Shetland, Orkney, Caithness, Sutherland, Ross and Cromarty, Elgin, Banff, Dumfries, Wigtown and Kirkcudbright, holding in each a series of public meetings in the principal towns and villages. During the summer holiday season, when some of its Members have been able to devote part of their holidays to propaganda, outdoor campaigns have been held in a number of country districts.

By MARGARET WYNNE NEVINSON.

The Women's Freedom League is a living monument of women's desire for liberty, representative government, and democratic ideals. In September, 1907, changes were made in the constitution of the Women's Social and Political Union which resulted in many women coming out of that organisation and forming a new society, afterwards known as the Women's Freedom League.

A conference—called by the W.S.P.U., but cancelled owing to the new régime—was held at Caxton Hall in October, 1907, when a constitution was agreed upon, and officers and a National Executive Committee elected.

The officers and committee are elected annually at the conference of delegates chosen, and instructed as to voting by the various branches of the United Kingdom. Every member has a vote in the affairs and constitution of the League, and thereby an opportunity of becoming conversant with the methods and procedure of representative government—an education greatly needed by a sex hitherto so shut out from public life. When the vote is won, the Women's Freedom League will at least enter politics as women trained and disciplined by many committees and conferences, and able to prove, by long experience, that "in the multitude of counsellors there is wisdom"—a wisdom not confined entirely to male counsellors, as some vainly contend.

CONSTITUTION.

OBJECTS.—To secure for women the Parliamentary Vote as it is or may be granted to men ; to use the power thus obtained to establish equality of rights and opportunities between the sexes, and to promote the social and industrial well-being of the community.

METHODS.—The objects of the League shall be promoted by—

1. Action entirely independent of all political parties.
2. Opposition to whatever Government is in power until such time as the franchise is granted.
3. Participation in Parliamentary elections ; at by-elections in opposition to the Government candidate on lines sanctioned by the annual or a special conference.
4. Vigorous agitation upon lines justified by the position of outlawry to which women are at present condemned.
5. Education of public opinion by all the usual methods, such as public meetings, demonstrations, debates, distribution of literature, newspaper correspondence, and deputations to public representatives and other bodies and their members.

MEMBERSHIP.—Membership to be open to women who approve the objects and methods of the League, who are prepared to act independently of party, who undertake to give precedence to the work of the Freedom League, who approve though they need not actually participate in militant action, who pay a minimum subscription of 1s. per annum. Associateship to be open to women and men who approve the objects and general work of the League, who pay a minimum subscription of 1s. per annum. Associates to have no voting power.

COMMITTEE AND OFFICIALS.—(1) The National Executive Committee shall consist of a president, treasurer, and 12 members to be elected by the annual conference, the Committee to have power to appoint its general secretary (who shall be paid if necessary) and heads of departments.

The National Executive Committee to meet once a month for the transaction of business ; and the final power of the League to be vested in the annual conference, to which branches shall send their delegates—one delegate representing from 12 to 50 members.

The Women's Freedom League, although a militant organisation, does not approve of injury to, or attack on persons or private property.

Selfridge's is the ideal store for the busy man.

We have at present about 60 branches of the Women's Freedom League, and new ones are constantly being formed. Branches with 12 to 50 members send one delegate to the conference, with proportional representation for larger branches, according to numbers. No branch under 12 members may send a delegate, nor one that has been in existence less than three months.

The W.F.L. has from time to time made militant protests, involving the imprisonment of members, against the inaction of the Government with regard to the political freedom of women ; but by large majorities the various conferences have decided to abstain from violence which may cause injury to life or private property.

In the beginning of the year 1910 a truce was called in order not to prejudice the working of the new Conciliation Committee formed in Parliament to advance the women's cause. Since then—as there have always been various Conciliation Bills before the House, and after the defeat of the third in March, 1912, the pledge of Mr. Asquith that he would allow amendments to be moved to the Reform Bill in favour of Women's Suffrage was repeated—this truce has been faithfully kept ; we regard our case as sub judice, the Committee holding the statesmanlike theory that there is “a time for the casting away of stones and a time for the gathering of stones together” (this is metaphorical, according to the resolutions of the conference).

The W.F.L. were the first to organise tax-resistance as a protest against their unrepresented state. This has been so successful that a separate society of tax-resisters has been formed.

In 1911 the W.F.L. organised resistance to the Census as a protest against government without consent. Later on, other societies joined us officially, as well as individual suffragists of all shades of opinion. All over the country the names of thousands of women are missing from the Census papers, proving the great axiom of the British Constitution—that government must rest on the consent of the governed. Every resisting householder, both male and female, was prepared for fine or imprisonment ; but, to the astonishment of the offenders, no action was taken, the Government preferring to ignore the whole thing—probably reflecting that the more people summoned, the more would the inaccuracies and defects of the Census be proclaimed to the public.

Selfridge's strive every day to enhance the pleasures

In 1908 and 1909 many of our members suffered imprisonment for sending orderly deputations to Cabinet Ministers or to the House of Commons, in spite of the Bill of Rights, which enacts :—" It is lawful for the subject to petition the King, and all prosecutions and commitments are illegal."

In October, 1908, a voice from the W.F.L. addressed the House of Commons from the ladies' gallery, and, the speaker being chained to the " grille," this insulting barrier had to be removed by the officials—with the lady still attached to it !

In February, 1909, large meetings were held by the W.F.L. all over the country, at which resolutions were passed asking that Women's Suffrage might be included in the King's Speech. Delegates were also appointed at all these meetings to carry the resolutions to their respective members. The police on this occasion arrested several innocent London women whom they knew by sight, whilst inside the lobbies of the House triumphant delegates from the country were sitting unmolested. Justice and common-sense went so astray on this occasion that all present were horrified ; and the Men's Committee of Justice to Women was formed, with the Rev. Dr. Cobb, Rector of St. Ethelburga's, Bishopsgate, as President.

In July of the same year, the W.F.L. sent a deputation of women to the House of Commons to present a petition to the Prime Minister. On this occasion they were not arrested, but left standing on the pavement from 8 p.m. till the House rose, at 2.15 a.m. Subsequently, relays of women kept the great watch from 5th of July to the 28th of October—waiting night and day, through rain and shine, and the long all-night sitting of the Budget, hoping to be received by Mr. Asquith.

Courtesy to visitors no less than customers is the Selfridge way.

The attempt to invalidate the Bermondsey by-election by pouring copying ink into two of the ballot boxes brought the watch to an end.

The by-election policy of the League has been that of "Keep the Liberal out!" At the General Elections this has been slightly modified. In June, 1912, after a referendum to the branches, it was decided to support the Labour candidate in three-cornered contests, as a more effective weapon against a Government that denies justice to women.

The Women's Social and Political Union was founded by Mrs. Pankhurst and her daughter Christabel in Manchester, in October, 1903. It was largely the outcome of the lesson learnt by Mrs. Pankhurst after many years of unsuccessful Suffrage work, that effective pressure could never be exercised by women who were definitely attached to one or other of the great political parties, and who put party ends before the cause of their own enfranchisement. Hence the W.S.P.U. was unattached from the beginning to any political organisation, and admitted to membership all women who were prepared to put the Suffrage before everything.

For the first two years of its existence, the Union limited itself to propaganda work. In the autumn of 1905 came the prospect of a General Election and the return of the Liberal Party to power. By this time, Miss Pankhurst had realised that a drastic change must be made in the methods of the Suffrage agitation, hitherto so quiet and constitutional that for more than 40 years the demand had been ignored with impunity. The visit to Manchester of Sir Edward Grey gave her an opportunity of pressing her cause upon the party which stood for the doctrine of no taxation without representation, and of asking how they intended to apply that doctrine to women. On October 13th, 1905, Miss Pankhurst went to the Free Trade Hall, where the future Foreign Secretary was to speak, accompanied by Annie Kenney, a member of the W.S.P.U. and a mill girl, who was well qualified to represent Lancashire working women. At question-time they asked Sir Edward Grey, both verbally and in writing, if the Liberal Party intended to enfranchise women. Their questions were ignored, and when they pressed for an answer they were set upon brutally, flung into the street, and for attempting to hold a protest meeting, arrested on a charge of assaulting the police and sentenced, Miss Pankhurst to seven and Miss Kenney to three days' imprisonment. The Liberal Party had declared war !

After the release of the prisoners it was resolved to adopt an Anti-Government attitude until the Government of the day made themselves responsible for a Bill to enfranchise women on the same terms as men ; and as the futility of purely constitutional methods in the hands of people denied the constitutional weapon of the Suffrage had been demonstrated by the failure of 40 years' work, the W.S.P.U. decided that it would make use of unconstitutional methods of bringing pressure to bear upon men who were indifferent to anything but violence or votes. In accordance with this policy, Manchester members opposed the election of Mr. Winston Churchill, who was standing as candidate for N.W. Manchester. After the General Election of 1905 Miss Annie Kenney went to represent the W.S.P.U. in London. She attended various Liberal demonstrations and was flung out for raising the already familiar cry of " Votes for Women."

Once in London the movement spread like wildfire. In the years from 1906 to 1910 its position was revolutionised. The W.S.P.U. took offices and formed a central organisation in London and branches all over the country. Members of the Union attended all the Parliamentary by-elections and followed the consistent policy of opposing Liberal candidates regardless of their personal opinions on the subject of votes for women, because as supporters of an Anti-Suffragist Government they pledged themselves to an actual opposition to the demand to which most of them gave verbal personal sympathy. The attempts to send deputations to Cabinet Ministers and to question them at meetings they addressed were greatly developed, and led to the imprisonment of hundreds of women, including Mrs. and Miss Pankhurst. In October, 1907, Mr. and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, the latter of whom had joined the Union and become Hon. Treasurer in 1906, started the paper "Votes for Women," as the official organ of the W.S.P.U. Throughout this period the keynote of W.S.P.U. policy was concentration upon the Government as the only body possessed of the power to enfranchise women. Promises and sympathy from private members were no longer regarded; they had been relied on since 1870, and had only led the movement into the slough of despond from which the W.S.P.U. had set out in 1905 to rescue it. As the Government refused to act from higher motives, they had to be taught by the unflinching hostility of militant Suffragists that votes for women was for them the smaller of two evils. Educational work and the organising of public opinion, nevertheless, were not disdained, for no society made a better use of and obtained larger results from properly employed constitutional methods than the W.S.P.U.

A secondary question arising out of the many imprisonments brought upon the women by the Government's criminal folly, attracted attention and created a situation only inferior in gravity and importance to the demand for sex equality itself. In October, 1908, Mr. Herbert Gladstone, exercising the very power which his successors have since denied they possess, moved the ten Suffragists then in Holloway Prison from the second to the first division, thus acknowledging the status they claimed for themselves as political offenders. From that date until the beginning of 1908, Suffragists were as a matter of course placed in the first division. From January, 1908, however, this practice was abandoned, and Suffragist prisoners charged with identical offences, and sometimes the identical women who had previously received first division treatment, were sent to the second and occasionally to the third division, and treated as ordinary criminals. After repeated protests and petitions, the first note of deliberate revolt was struck by Miss Wallace Dunlop, when on July 5th, 1909, after having been sentenced to three weeks' imprisonment in the second division, she adopted the hunger strike already in use among Russian prisoners. As a result of her refusal to take food, she was released on July 9th, but her example was immediately followed by other members of the Union who were being imprisoned all over the country. At first the hunger strikers were allowed to fast for four, five, or six days, and then when on the verge of death hastily released. On September 24th, however, it was announced that ten women who had been imprisoned in Winson Green Gaol, Birmingham, were being fed by force by order of the Home Office, and this practice was immediately afterwards extended to all other Suffragists in prison. Shortly after her release, Mrs. Leigh, one of the women thus outraged, entered an action for assault against the Home Secretary and the prison officials, on the ground that compulsory forcible feeding was illegal. The decision in the case, heard on December 9th, was given against her, and forcible feeding was allowed to continue for some time and was usually carried out with revolting brutality. The number of hunger strikers from June, 1909 to December, 1912 was 209. The number forcibly fed was 124. The sufferings of the hunger strikers, however, were not in vain, for in the summer of 1910, Mr. Winston Churchill, who had succeeded Mr. Herbert Gladstone at the Home Office, announced his intention of making a new rule under which the prisoners not guilty of "moral turpitude" were to receive some of the privileges of first division prisoners. This concession, of course, was really intended to answer the demand of militant Suffragists.

At the beginning of 1910, the situation created by the militant agitation had become so serious that it could no longer be ignored. Negotiations were entered into which led to the proclamation of a truce. The formation of the Conciliation Committee, the introduction of the Conciliation Bill, and the second reading debate on that measure on July 11th and 12th—days given by the Government—followed in quick succession. When Parliament, which had been adjourned to permit of a conference on the House of Lords controversy, re-assembled in November, the question of further facilities for the Conciliation Bill immediately became of pressing importance. On Friday, November 18th, the W.S.P.U. held a meeting in Caxton Hall, and sent out a series of deputations, the first of which was led by Mrs. Pankhurst and the veteran Dr. Garrett Anderson, to attempt to interview Mr. Asquith in the House of Commons. The deputations were repulsed by the police and plain clothes' men with unspeakable brutality; over a hundred women were arrested and others so roughly handled that they suffered severely, and in a few cases died from the after-effects of their treatment. The events of this day—known as Black Friday—were afterwards made the subject of special inquiry by the Conciliation Committee, who issued a memorandum reporting and confirming the cases of gross brutality and indecency brought against the police. The memorandum was laid before Mr. Winston Churchill, who not only declined to inquire into the conduct of the police, but also attributed all the accusations to the "mendacity" of the W.S.P.U. On November 22nd, the Prime Minister, who had already announced the dissolution of Parliament, stated that facilities would be granted in the next Parliament, under certain conditions, for proceeding with the Bill. The W.S.P.U. refused to be satisfied with this meaningless declaration, and proceeded to further deputations and stone-throwing, which were followed by more imprisonments, prisoners being given the benefit of Mr. Churchill's new rule.

The session of 1911 brought another interval of peace. After the new Conciliation Bill introduced by Sir George Kemp had passed its second reading, Mr. Lloyd George, on behalf of Mr. Asquith, announced that the Government would give a week in 1912 to the committee stage of the Bill, if so framed as to admit of amendment. This statement was confirmed and amplified by Sir Edward Grey, and the W.S.P.U. entered into an educational campaign on behalf of the Bill. Realising that the greatest danger lay in the moving of "widening" amendments, which would create differences of opinion among supporters of the original measure, the Union modified its by-election policy, so that support was only extended to candidates pledged to resist all amendments not approved by the Conciliation Committee, and electors were asked to vote against men refusing so to pledge themselves.

On November 7th the situation was completely changed by Mr. Asquith's announcement of the Government's intention to introduce a Manhood Suffrage Bill, with his insulting offer not to oppose the inclusion of women by a private member's amendment. A joint deputation from various Suffrage Societies was immediately sent to the Premier. Miss Pankhurst, speaking for the W.S.P.U., demanded the inclusion of women on the same terms as men in the original measure as introduced by the Government. Mr. Asquith refused and merely reiterated his promise not to oppose a private member's amendment. The W.S.P.U. declined to consider this compromise and reverted to its anti-Government policy on the grounds that (1) given Manhood Suffrage no solution short of Manhood Suffrage could be accepted, and the limited franchise proposed by the Conciliation Bill became totally unsatisfactory; (2) in view of the hostility of certain Cabinet Ministers, of the Nationalist Party, and of the Anti-Suffragists, no amendment had a reasonable chance of success, in the absence of Government pressure; (3) as a matter of principle, the Government could not be permitted without protest to answer the demand for votes for women merely by giving more votes to men and ignoring the existence of women in their Bill as introduced. The Conciliation Bill having been rendered totally inadequate, the W.S.P.U. refused to have any further dealings with it, and were confirmed in their resolution by Mr. Lloyd George's boast in his Bath speech, of November 24th, that the Reform Bill had "torpedoed" the Conciliation Bill.

Selfridge's.

The prospects of Woman Suffrage under the Reform Bill did not improve during the winter of 1911-1912, nor was the re-introduction of the Conciliation Bill of any value. In the spring the W.S.P.U. made a further great protest. The window-breaking campaign of March 1st to 4th was directed against the property of wealthy and influential citizens as a means of bringing home to them their responsibility for the misdeeds of the Government and towards the Suffrage movement. Over 200 arrests were made, including Mrs. Pankhurst and Mrs. Tuke, and on March 5th, Mr. and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence were arrested at Clement's Inn, and Mrs. Pankhurst and Mrs. Tuke in Holloway on a charge of conspiring to incite others to break windows. Miss Pankhurst managed to evade the warrant for her arrest, and escaped to France, where she continued her work for the movement. At the end of the magisterial inquiry into the charge, Mrs. Tuke was dismissed, but the others were committed for trial. On May 22nd, Mrs. Pankhurst and the Lawrences were sentenced to nine months' imprisonment in the second division, the jury, in convicting them adding an urgent recommendation to mercy on the ground of their purity of motive.

Meanwhile the Conciliation Bill had been defeated at its second reading on March 28th by a majority of 14. Although the defeat was widely attributed to the militant action of the W.S.P.U., it was in reality caused by the hostility of the Nationalists, who chose to fancy that the further progress of the Bill would endanger the chances of Home Rule. The whole proceeding was merely a fresh proof of the wisdom of the W.S.P.U. in refusing to trust their cause to the mercy of private members who put other interests first. As the Conciliation Bill franchise, even if it had become law, would have been most unsatisfactory when accompanied by Manhood Suffrage, there was no occasion for regretting its loss.

After they had been sentenced, Mrs. Pankhurst and Mrs. Lawrence were sent to join the other Suffrage prisoners in Holloway, where they demanded removal to the first division. After some delay and threats of a hunger strike, the Home Secretary ordered this to be done on June 10th, Mr. Lawrence in Brixton Prison also being put in the first division. This was followed by a renewed demand from the other Suffrage prisoners for treatment as first division offenders, they having already, by a hunger strike in April, won for themselves the special privileges of Mr. Churchill's rule, which had at first been denied to some of them. To enforce their demand a hunger strike was instituted on June 19th, in which the leaders also took part. Forcible feeding was again resorted to, and on June 24th, Mrs. Pankhurst and Mrs. Lawrence were released on medical grounds, as were many of the others. By the beginning of July practically every Suffragist had been set at liberty, many long before the expiration of their sentences.

A Selfridge transaction is only complete when the customer is satisfied.

Within the last few months the agitation has been carried on fearlessly and unceasingly. The various protests and imprisonments throughout the country; the action of Mrs. Leigh and Miss Gladys Evans in Dublin; the sentence of five years' penal servitude passed on them and their heroic hunger strike and release after a few weeks' suffering—all these are too recent to need more than a passing mention. Differences of opinion as to policy arose in October between Mrs. and Miss Pankhurst on the one hand, and Mr. and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence on the other. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence thereupon resigned from the W.S.P.U., taking with them the paper "Votes for Women," and Mrs. Pankhurst became hon. treasurer, Mrs. Tuke hon. secretary, and Miss Christabel Pankhurst the editor of the new official organ, "The Suffragette." At the time of writing it is impossible to forecast the future of the Reform Bill. All that can be prophesied with safety is that there is practically no chance of including women on any terms, save through direct Government action. The W.S.P.U. has never wavered in its demand for equal treatment for women and men under the Bill and will continue to urge that demand by every means in its power. The militant agitation of the last six years has brought the movement to a position it has never occupied before. Nearly 1,000 members of this society alone have been arrested, some of them many times over ; a fund of over £130,000 has been raised, 14 crowded meetings have been held in the Albert Hall alone, and scores of thousands in other halls and in the open air. In every way the record of work equals if it does not surpass that of any previous political agitation.

chisement of women on broad and democratic lines, and towards this end to unite all sections of democratic suffragists in common action. A number of successful public meetings and demonstrations have been held under the auspices of the Joint Committee, and its organisers have organised and addressed a large number of meetings and arranged deputations and memorials in the constituencies. Conferences with Members of Parliament in favour of the democratic enfranchisement of women have also been held from time to time. The most important and successful effort of the Joint Committee was the organisation of a National Meeting of Delegates to demand the inclusion of Women's Suffrage on broad and democratic lines in the Franchise and Registration Bill. This meeting was held at the London Opera House on December 4th, and was attended by an audience of well over 2,000. The meeting consisted of a morning and an afternoon session. Mr. Arthur Henderson, M.P., presided over the morning session and the following resolution was moved by Sir John Simon, K.C.V.O., K.C., M.P., seconded by Miss Margaret Bondfield, and supported by Miss I. O. Ford and Mr. Robert Munro, K.C., M.P. :—

“That this National Meeting of Delegates calls on the House of Commons to include the enfranchisement of women on broad and democratic lines in the Franchise and Registration Bill, and that copies of this resolution be sent to Members of the Cabinet and to the leaders of the other parties in the House of Commons.”

The afternoon session was presided over by Mr. F. D. Acland, M.P., and the following resolution was moved by Mr. J. Ramsay Macdonald, M.P., seconded by the Rev. O. Silvester Horne, M.P., and supported by Mrs. Henry Fawcett, LL.D., and Rosalind, Countess of Carlisle :—

“That the Societies represented at this National Meeting of Delegates undertake to organise deputations of electors, and to take all other possible means to press their local Members of Parliament to vote for the inclusion in the Franchise and Registration Bill of Women's Suffrage on broad and democratic lines.”

Both resolutions were carried unanimously.

Telegraphic Address : "Antitaxes," West Strand, London.

The Women's Tax Resistance League was formed early in 1910 to emphasize the injustice of exacting taxation from women while giving them no political representation, in violation of the essential principle of the British Constitution that taxation and representation should go together. It unites all women who are agreed as to the value of tax resistance as a weapon in the fight for the vote, so that the effectiveness of this form of protest may be increased by concerted action.

The Selfridge Reading, Resting and Writing-rooms are at Visitors' Service.

The League is an entirely independent organisation, consisting of members of both the non-militant and militant Suffrage Societies. Thus it holds a neutral attitude on the question of "tactics," apart from the passive protest involved in refusal to pay taxes.

Its work is two-fold: (1) It preaches the principle of tax resistance by all the usual methods of propaganda. Meetings are held under the auspices of the League itself, and speakers from the League address meetings, organised by the various Suffrage Societies, at their invitation. A special feature is made of literature, and in addition to a quantity of free leaflets, there are on sale the following pamphlets: "Why we resist our Taxes," by Mrs. Kineton Parkes; "John Hampden," by Mrs. Darent Harrison; "The Duty of Tax Resistance," by Laurence Housman, and "Marriage and the Income Tax." (2) It gives expert help and advice to members in carrying out their protest. This side of the work is most important, as the technical points involved in connection with forcible distraint are naturally unfamiliar to most people. It is found, too, that the authorities are sometimes inclined to overstep their powers, and cases of illegal exactions, overcharges and other injustices have been exposed. The position of married women is a case in point; the League has compelled the officials to admit that married women are not legally liable to payment of Income Tax.

When distraint is levied and a sale takes place in consequence of refusal to pay, the League organises meetings and demonstrations of protest, and much valuable work is done by means of the object-lesson thus afforded to the public of the determination of women to refuse consent to unjust government.

In cases where no goods can be seized, the authorities have to choose between surrendering their claim or imprisoning the resister. In one case only, that of Miss Housman, have they adopted the latter course, and in response to the League's agitation, Miss Housman was released after one week without paying the money owing.

The needs of the modern woman are carefully studied at Selridge's.

In many other cases known to the League the resisters are at large, and the threat of imprisonment has not been carried into effect.

The League has brought the case of the taxation of married women prominently before the public. The recent imprisonment of Mr. Mark Wilks for non-payment of his wife's Income Tax has shown up the anomaly of the present law, which refuses to treat the incomes of husband and wife as separate, and regards the husband as the person responsible for claims or payments in respect of his wife's income. The League hopes for public support in securing an amendment of this law in the next Finance Act which shall be fair to both parties alike.

The business of the League is carried on by a Committee elected at an annual meeting of members.

Membership falls into two classes: (1) Members proper who are in a position to resist the payment of taxes and are prepared to do so. (2) Associates who pay no direct taxes on which resistance is possible, but who are prepared to support the League by work and money. Minimum subscription is 2s. 6d. a year.

WOMEN TEACHERS' FRANCHISE UNION.

(Officially Contributed.)

Headquarters address :—MISS H. M. TOWNSEND, Hon. Secretary, 27, Murillo Road, Lee, S.E.

The W.T.F.U. was formed on July 8th, 1912, at a meeting of women teachers—metropolitan and extra-metropolitan—held in the large Essex Hall, Strand. The women teachers had hesitated for a long time to add to the already numerous suffrage societies. They thought, as one of the objects of the National Union of Teachers is "To secure effective Parliamentary representation for its members," the N.U.T. would work on their behalf. More than half its 79,000 members are women. Great difficulty was experienced at Aberystwyth in 1911, and at Hull in 1912, owing to the women delegates constituting so small a proportion of the assembly, and opposition to the women's claim on the Union from a large proportion of men delegates. The women teachers of the N.U.T. still remain the only organised body of women workers who have not sent resolutions to the Prime Minister on their enfranchisement. The objects of the Women Teachers' Franchise Union are :—

Selfridge's is the ideal store for the busy man.

1. To get fair play for women teachers in the educational world.
2. To organise women teacher suffragists and sympathisers so as to make their point of view felt in their own organisations.

The Union has grown rapidly in London, and branches are being formed in the provinces.

The League was founded in June, 1908 by Miss Cicely Hamilton and Miss Bessie Hatton. Amongst its first members were Miss Beatrice Harraden, Miss Violet Hunt, Miss Elizabeth Robins, Mrs. Madeline Lucette Ryley, Miss Evelyn Sharp and Miss Olive Schreiner.

Its first President, Miss Elizabeth Robins, has recently resigned the post, Mrs. Flora Annie Steel being elected her successor in October, 1912. In December, 1909, an office was taken for the League at 55, Berners Street, W. In June, 1912, the W.W.S.L. moved to 12, Henrietta Street, W.C., close to other Suffrage Societies and many publishers.

Its publications are the following:—"How the Vote was Won," by C. Hamilton and Hedley Charlton; "The Suffrage Question," by M. L. Ryley; Cartoon Post Card, designed by W. H. Margetson, of "Justice and Prejudice"; "A Pageant of Great Women," by C. Hamilton; "Women's Cause," a poem by Laurence Housman; all in 1909; "Why," by Elizabeth Robins; "Lady Geraldine's Speech," by Beatrice Harraden, in 1910; "Woman's Plea," a poem by Lilian Sauter, 1911; "Under His Roof," by Elizabeth Robins; "Feminism," by May Sinclair, 1912.

Selfridge way.

The W.W.S.L. has held several large meetings and entertainments, at most of which speeches were made and literature sold of a propagandist nature. Amongst them were "At Homes" at the Waldorf Hotel, May 4th, 1909 (when Miss E. Robins, Mrs. Nevinson, Miss Cicely Hamilton, Miss E. Sharp, Mr. Zangwill and Mr. Pett Ridge were the speakers) and February, 1910, when Miss E. Robins, Mrs. Nevinson, Mr. John Masefield and Dr. Saleeby read extracts from their works.

Also meetings at the Richelieu Hotel, March 24th, 1911, and the Criterion Restaurant, May 23rd, 1911, and November 2nd, 1911, Miss Lena Ashwell and others speaking at the latter.

The League has given, in conjunction with the Actresses' Franchise League, successful matinees in November, 1909, and November, 1910. "A Pageant," by Cicely Hamilton, "Stuffing," by George Paston, and other suffrage plays by its members were produced. In February, 1912, the W.W.S.L. gave a matinee at the Prince's Theatre, presenting, "Edith," by Elizabeth Baker; "Votes for Women" (3rd act), by Elizabeth Robins, etc.

The W.W.S.L. took part in the great Procession of 1910, when 100 members walked under its banner, and four carriages were decorated with its colours; also in those of July, 1910, and of June, 1911, when its contingent was headed by its President, and a new banner, specially designed by W. H. Margetson, was carried. A banner contingent and speaker (Mrs. Nevinson) represented it at the Trafalgar Square Meeting organised by the Men's League on June 15th, 1912; it was also represented at the National Political Reform Meeting at the London Opera House.

It sent delegates to the N.U.W.S.S. Conferences of 1911 and 1912 (Mrs. Rentoul Ester, Mrs. C. G. Gallichan and Mrs. Eileen Mitchell at the latter); to the Anglo-American Arbitration Treaty Meeting (Miss Elizabeth Banks); to the Pass-the-Bill Committee Meetings (Miss E. Banks and Dr. Arabella Kenealy); to the Watch Committee (Miss Nina Boyle); to the Tax Resisters' Conference (Miss E. M. Tait); to the Deputation to Mr. Ramsay MacDonald (Mrs. Nevinson).

Two of its Hon. Men Associates (Mr. Laurence Housman and Mr. H. N. Brailsford) represented it at the First Congress of the Men's International Alliance in London, 1912, and at the Hyde Park Demonstration on July 14, 1912, the following members appeared on its platform: Mrs. Archibald Little (chair), Miss Beatrice Harraden, Mrs. Darent Harrison, Mrs. Alice Meynell, Miss Peggy Webling; while the speakers were Miss Abadam, Miss N. Boyle, Mrs. Nevinson, Mr. Joseph Clayton, Rev. C. Hinscliffe, Mr. Simpson.

The objects of the W.W.S.L. are to obtain the vote for women on the same terms as it is or may be granted to men. Its methods are those proper to writers—the use of the pen.

The Dublin Women's Suffrage Association was started in 1874, when the Hon. Secretaries were Mrs. Haslam and Miss McDowell: the latter died in 1902. They worked on sedulously, holding public and drawing-room meetings, distributing literature, and sending petitions to the House of Commons from various parts of Ireland. In 1896 they initiated a Bill enabling women to be elected as Poor Law Guardians, which was successfully carried through, with the help of William Johnson and T. W. Russell, and two women were immediately elected in consequence. This number has been increasing with every fresh election, and is now 110.

In 1898, when the Local Government Bill was passed, empowering women to be elected on the Rural and Urban District Councils, much more interest was aroused in all women's questions, the number of the subscribers largely increased, and the name of the Society was changed to the Irish Women's Suffrage and Local Government Association. Meetings were held in Belfast, Cork, Limerick, Londonderry, and other towns; also annually in the Mansion House, Dublin, and frequently presided over by the Lord Mayor and addressed by leading speakers from Great Britain. The seed sown by the Association for 30 years had now borne fruit, and several of the younger members, who were dissatisfied with the non-party and non-militant methods of the Association, established independent bodies of their own. In 1910, at the suggestion of the parent Association and its branches, resolutions were passed in favour of Women's Suffrage by the Corporation of Dublin, the County Council of Dublin, and the Councils of the Boroughs in Cork and Limerick; and in 1911 a Bill to enable women to be elected on the Borough and County Councils in Ireland—promoted by the Association—was successfully piloted by Hugh A. Law, M.P., and Lord Mayo through Parliament, and became law. In consequence, Miss S. C. Harrison was immediately elected to the Dublin Corporation and Dr. Mary Strongman and Mrs. A. Forde to the Borough of Waterford. Women are now eligible to sit upon all the elected public Boards in Ireland. There has hardly been a legislative measure for the benefit of the women of the United Kingdom passed during the (nearly) 40 years of its existence in the promotion of which the Society has not taken an active part.

The Irishwomen's Suffrage Federation was founded in the autumn of 1911 for the purpose of uniting scattered Suffrage Societies in Ireland in a system of practical co-operation, combined with local autonomy. Nine Societies, representing districts as far apart as Antrim and Kerry, have now joined the Federation, which has proved a useful means of mutual intercourse and interchange of speakers. Its policy is strictly non-party, and as a whole, non-militant ; but individual members are free to take militant action if they desire to do so.

Educational and political work both have a prominent place on its programme. Its various component Societies have been busily engaged in breaking new ground in Munster, Leinster, and Ulster, and small branches have just been formed in Galway and Ballinasloe, which will prove, it is hoped, the starting points for a strong organisation in Connaught. Publications of all the English Suffrage Societies, together with pamphlets published in Ireland, and the distinctive organ of Irish Suffragists, The Irish Citizen, have been widely distributed, and have done much to educate public opinion. Efforts have been made—with varying success—to gain a fair hearing in the Press. This is up-hill work, as every Suffragist knows ; but nothing is impossible to mortals who have sufficient grit—not even the influencing of a newspaper editor.

Mrs. Despard, Miss Abadam, Mr. Laurence Housman, Mr. Hugh Chapman, and several other English speakers have visited Ireland in connection with the Federation, and have in different ways interpreted to Irish audiences the deeper meanings of the Women's Movement. The "Friends of Suffrage" scheme has been adopted by most of the Federated Societies, and is proving a valuable method of propaganda, especially in country districts.

As regards the political situation, with its perpetual changes and intricacies, the Committee of the Irishwomen's Suffrage Federation has always maintained an attitude of watchful alertness; and no Irish M.P. can assert that he has neither seen nor heard anything of this Association during the first year of its existence. Good work has been done in "lobbying" the Members; and deputations and petitions have been organised from time to time, with a view to keeping the Suffragist standpoint in the foreground.

The badge of the Federation bears its name in silver letters on a small Celtic Cross in St. Patrick's blue, suggesting that the cause of Women's Suffrage stands for all that is noblest and purest in Irish life and Irish ideals.

inception of the Association an assured success. The chair was taken by Miss Huxley, and a representative audience having been duly informed of the objects and scope of the parent society in London, an Executive Committee was at once formed. Lady Arnott undertook to be temporary president, and the Society, under her auspices, soon made itself felt in Dublin and throughout the country. The official work was conducted by two hon. secretaries—Miss May Falkiner (now Mrs. Robert Murray) and Miss E. Perry, B.A., who were assisted by Miss F. Meade, Miss K. Patton, and Miss Violet White. Miss Dorothy Warren acted as hon. treasurer. Public meetings were held periodically, among the most important being those addressed by Mrs. Fawcett and Lady Betty Balfour, respectively. Lady Betty Balfour, in addition to public and private speaking, also did valuable work during her visits to Ireland by arousing enthusiasm in lukewarm circles, and making many new friends for the Suffrage cause. The Countess of Fingall, as vice-president, personally advocated the objects of the Association at public and private meetings, and supported it by her time, money, and sympathy. On the unavoidable resignation of Lady Arnott, in February, 1912, she consented, at the unanimous invitation of the committee, to take the president's place. The Society now has a roll of 750 members. It is not possible here to mention more than a few of the capable and energetic workers who have contributed to its success.

On the committee, Miss Flora Meade, Mrs. Hogg, Miss Bagley, Miss Reed, Miss Hutton, and Miss Despard worked with exceptional zeal. Miss E. Perry, B.A., as hon. secretary, with Miss May Falkiner, and afterwards, working for an interval almost unaided, did invaluable service. But the growth of the Society soon made honorary effort inadequate, and the acquisition of a first-class office in Nassau Street, in the spring of 1911, made it imperative that it should be superseded. Miss F. Walker Leigh was accordingly appointed secretary, and at once effected a substantial increase of members. On her resignation, in March, 1912, Miss Patton, who had done considerable honorary work for the Society, was appointed in her place, and a vigorous scheme of work was at once mapped out, which is now in progress. The office moved, in November, 1912, to its present locality—51c, Dawson Street.

In addition to the public meetings already mentioned, the Society has given various entertainments, dramatic and musical, and a large number of drawing-room meetings addressed by local and English speakers, have been held. Miss Muriel Thompson, Miss Cicely Corbett, B.A., Miss Evelyn Deakin, Miss Abadam, came over, respectively, and made many new friends for the Association. Drawing-rooms were lent by Mrs. Noel Guinness, Mrs. Hogg, Mrs. T. Gordon, Mrs. Buchanan, Lady Reed, Miss Meade, Miss Thornhill, Miss Wright, Mrs. Brown, Miss Fisher, Mrs. Best and Mrs. Moore.

Mrs. Wisdom Hely lent her large hall, etc., etc.

The Association has been invariably treated with courtesy by the Dublin Unionist Press. Full reports of meetings and entertainments have been given by The Irish Times, and correspondence has been freely admitted by The Daily Express.

Platforms at public meetings have been well supported by able and representative men. Lord Chief Justice O'Brien, the Right Hon. Jonathan Hogg, Sir William Smyly, the Rev. Robert H. Murray, D.Litt., Mr. Falconer, K.C., Dr. Edward Taylor, the Rev. H. Patton, B.D., Dr. Travers Smith, and the Rev. Denham Osborn, etc., etc., have expressed their active sympathy on various occasions.

It is universally acknowledged that not only has the Association done good, tangible work in the enrolment of a substantial number of representative members, but that it has been of exceptional value to the movement, in breaking down prejudice, and in educating public opinion on the Suffrage question in Ireland.

THE WOMEN'S "MARCH."

Organising Hon. Secretary :

Mrs. DE FONBLANQUE, Duncton, Petworth.

Hon. Treasurer and Route Secretary :

Miss MARGARET E. BYHAM, Middle Heath, Graffham, Petworth.

The idea of the "March" as a form of Suffrage propaganda originated with Mrs. de Fonblanque, the Leader and Organising Hon. Secretary. She had not previously taken any prominent part in Suffrage work. Inspired by the bravery of the militant women of the movement to organise a definite plan of activity on constitutional lines, she originally planned to march from London to Edinburgh, but was advised by more experienced friends to change the direction of the route, and make London the last, instead of the first stage of the journey.

Early in September, 1912, invitations were issued to all Suffrage Societies in every part of Great Britain to co-operate; and by October 12th of the same year, the plans were complete, and six women left Edinburgh to cover a journey on foot of 400 miles. By November 16th they had accomplished their purpose.

The "March" left Edinburgh amid scenes of great enthusiasm, throngs of people lining the route as far as Portobello, a distance of four miles. A handsome banner, "The Appeal of Womanhood," led, and was carried by Miss M. E. Byham and Miss N. Brown. A light van, known as the "Petition Van," brought up the rear. This was drawn by "Butterfly," a favourite mare of Mrs. de Fonblanque's, bred and broken in by her. "Butterfly" accomplished the journey as far as Finchley; but being too militant for crowded thoroughfares, was boxed and sent home, and a horse was hired to finish the journey. The character of the "March" was distinctly more religious and spiritual than political. The banner bespoke its mission of rescuing the victims of sweated labour, and the White Slave Traffic; and a Petition, praying for the "enfranchisement of women this session," was presented for signatures along the whole route. The Petition was divided into sections, so that signatures could be obtained, not only at meetings, but at every conceivable opportunity. Many were obtained from pedestrians met on the road; some from outlying residents, who were reached by the help of friendly drivers; one signature was given at the top of a telegraph pole, in response to an appeal from Miss A. Wright, who climbed the pole to reach a man working there.

The Petition Secretary was Mrs. Jethro Robinson, who ably fulfilled a responsible task, and obtained a heavy roll of signatures, amounting to many thousands. These were entirely drawn from the line of route. Signatures were eagerly given, and by all classes of people. Many of the sections were endorsed by the Mayor and Corporation of the town or city where the "March" halted for the night. When London was reached, sections of the Petition were handed up all along the route from Camden Town to Trafalgar Square, from the London branches of nearly all Suffrage Societies. The words of the Petition were:

"We, the undersigned, pray the Government to bring in a bill for Woman Suffrage this Session."

The Petition consisted of a roll of linen about 799 yards in length, every yard being stamped with the words quoted. The sections were enclosed in a large leather case, which was presented at No. 10, Downing Street, the official residence of the Prime Minister.

The first lady to join forces with the leader was Miss Margaret E. Byham, of Graffham, Sussex, who undertook the duties of treasurer and route secretary; Mrs. Jethro Robinson of London, Miss White of Woking, Miss Sarah Bennett of London, and Miss Nannie Brown of Edinburgh, made up the party of six, who covered the whole distance. Others who joined for part of the journey were:—Miss Cowe, Miss Ellen Beck, Miss Edith Beck, Mrs. Atkinson, Mrs. Crow, Miss Dover, Miss A. Wright, Miss F. Wright, Mrs. Bell, Mrs. Cavendish Bentinck, Miss Briscoe, Miss Roll, Mrs. Amy Saunderson, Mrs. Stephenson, Mrs. Richardson, Miss Richardson, Mrs. K. Marshall, Mrs. Lock, Miss Meredith, Miss Hull, Miss B. Smith, Mrs. Finlayson Gould, Miss Graham, Miss B. Wright, Miss Bunton, Miss Foster, Miss Ricardo, Mrs. Westoby, and Miss A. Roff.

The uniform chosen was a coat and skirt of russet brown, with hat of the same material, adorned with a green cockade, and earned for the Marchers the name of "the Brown Women." Lanterns were carried at nightfall, and made a picturesque addition to the little army.

The organisation of the "March" was in the hands of Mrs. de Fonblanque, Organising Hon. Secretary and Leader; Miss Margaret E. Byham, Hon. Treasurer and Route Secretary; Miss Annie N. Roff, Hon. Secretary; Mrs. Arncliffe Sennett, Hon. Organiser for the reception of the Marchers into London. Miss Nannie Brown and her sister had previously made a tour from Edinburgh to London on foot, three years ago. Their father was imprisoned in 1859 for refusing to pay his annuity tax, and his action was instrumental in securing the repeal of the tax.

The route lay along the Great North Road. The places visited were: Edinburgh, Musselburgh, Haddington, Dunbar, Berwick, Melford, Alnwick, Morpeth, Newcastle, Durham, Darlington, Northallerton, Thirsk, Easingwold, York, Selby, Doncaster, Bantry, Retford, Tuxford, Newark, Grantham, Coltersworth, Stamford, Peterborough, Huntingdon, St. Neots, Biggleswade, Hitchin, Hatfield, Barnet, London.

Sunday excepted, the average distance covered each day was 15 miles; on a few occasions 20 miles was accomplished; and one day, even 30 miles. The "March" halted for one night only at each place; and large and successful meetings were held sometimes twice a day and every night. The sale and distribution of literature was a feature of the campaign, and was energetically prosecuted by Miss White, the literature secretary. Miss White had recently returned from India, having spent ten years in missionary labour there. Expenses amounted from 35s. to 40s. weekly. Hotel accommodation varied, but in most cases everything possible was done for the comfort of the Marchers. Hospitality was offered at every place touched. Miss M. E. Byham and Miss Cowe shared the responsibility of finding accommodation for the Marchers at every halt; Miss Cowe doing useful service in this and other ways by riding ahead on a bicycle. In this way she was able to obtain many signatures for the petition which the pedestrians could not have reached.

A church parade took place on each Sunday, the final one being to Westminster Abbey on Nov. 17th, when twenty "Brown Women" attended morning service. The order of the "March" was as follows:—

1. Banner, carried by members of Men's League, "The Flaming Sword of Truth."
2. Mrs. de Fonblanque.
3. First section of "Brown Women," led by banner, "The Appeal of Womanhood."
4. Petition Van.
5. Second section of "Brown Women," led by Mrs. Cavendish Bentinck.
6. Contingents from Suffrage Societies.

Two bands accompanied the march from Camden Town to Trafalgar Square.

Its motto, "Co-operation and Goodwill," was quickly adopted, nearly all Societies sinking differences of policy, to combine and give the "March" their sympathy and support. The country, along the whole line of route declared itself in favour of Woman Suffrage, and the Press, for once, were on the side of the women, and gave the "March" every prominence. The "March" was independent of any Suffrage organisation, and its expenses entirely covered by subscriptions of friends and admirers of the self-sacrifice and patient endurance of the Marchers.

Selfridge's cater for connoisseurs and children and all the people in between.

Sympathy, hospitality and enthusiasm were accorded them from rich and poor alike; and the "March" proved itself a powerful educator on social conditions and the need of "Votes for Women."

The meetings held along the line of route commanded audiences of 6,000 and 7,000 people; and several times two or three platforms of speakers had to be arranged for. The principal speakers were: Mrs. Despard, Miss Jack, Miss Munro, Mrs. Finlayson Gould, Miss S. Bennett, Mrs. Amy Saunderson, Miss M. E. Byham, Mrs. Cavendish Bentinck and Mrs. de Fonblanque. Meetings were also held at villages, through which the "March" passed, where the question of Woman Suffrage had not previously been introduced.

The people of Scotland and the North of England showed a keener interest in the subject than people of the South. The van was driven into London by Mrs. Lock.

A halt was made at Camden Town to receive the Petition from the London branches; and from this point the strength was increased by thousands of Suffragists who fell in behind the Marchers, nearly all Societies, including the Men's League, sending representatives. The "March" was continued to the strains of "See the Conquering Hero Comes," and other appropriate airs.

Plans for the reception of the Marchers into London were carried out by Mrs. Arncliffe Sennett, sister to Mrs. de Fonblanque.

The "March" entered London by way of Finchley, Highgate, and Camden Town to Trafalgar Square, where a vast concourse of people had assembled. Meetings were held from the Plinth, and at 4 p.m., Mrs. de Fonblanque and Miss Margaret E. Byham proceeded to Downing Street to deliver the "Petition of the People" into the hands of Mr. Asquith. They were received by Mr. Eric Drummond, an under-Secretary of the Premier.

Mr. Asquith promised to give it his consideration; and later, informed Mrs. de Fonblanque that he had nothing to add to his previous statements.

The International Suffrage Shop, Feminist Publishers and Booksellers, started in 1910. It moved to its large premises at 15, Adam Street, W.C., in April, 1911, and began in earnest to meet the demand for a common meeting ground for the Women's Movement. Its object, as stated in an early circular, was "the Publication and Dissemination of Literature dealing with all aspects of the Woman's Movement," but, in its new premises (recently extended), its work soon developed and took on new branches. Besides its great variety of up-to-date literature, the books and publications of all Suffrage Societies—as well as those of Anti-Suffrage Societies—are kept in stock. Books dealing with economic, industrial, social, legal and political questions affecting women are its chief stock.

Other items are:—

Foreign and American books on the Women's Movement.

Foreign, American and English newspapers.

Badges and colours of all Societies.

Photographs and postcards of British and foreign Suffragists.

Modern plays on social questions; art and children's books, and pictorial posters, etc.

Other branches of work include:—Lecture agency, printing and publishing for customers, holding of meetings, bookbinding, obtaining books of all kinds to order, and finding scarce and out-of-print books, supplying literature for private and public meetings, etc. The Strand Lecture

It is easier to enter Selfridge's Bargain Basement than to leave it.

Room (in connection with the shop) is capable of seating over 100 persons and is available for meetings, rehearsals, etc. Several series of meetings have been held here by the International Suffrage Shop; but the Shop has had some large ventures also, the most notable of which are the debate between Cicely Hamilton and G. K. Chesterton, and the great W. T. Stead Memorial Meeting, calling for legislation against the White Slave Traffic evil at Queen's Hall.

The latest venture is a lending library, which started on January 26th. This is being organised in response to a very definite demand not only by Suffragists, but by the general public, and will, it is hoped, be of real value. It is available for both men and women.

To put the Shop on a sound financial basis—or rather so that its work may continue in spite of the many difficulties that have beset its progress—a fund has recently been started. So far, the year's rent has been guaranteed; that is good; but much more is needed if the plans and hopes of its founder are to bear fruit.

tion, any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding : second reading taken on March 8th. After a full afternoon's debate, Speaker refused the closure for a question involving (so it was stated) so serious a change in the British Constitution : talked out.—Fifteen thousand women march in procession from Embankment to the Albert Hall.

1908.—Militancy more pronounced.—Mr. York Stanger K.C. (Liberal Member for North Kensington), introduced a Bill to extend the Parliamentary franchise to women on the same lines as that of the previous year ; second reading moved by Mr. Stanger on February 28th, carried by the overwhelming majority of 179 (Ayes, 271 ; Noes, 92) ; referred to a Committee of the whole House ; its ultimate fate depended on the action of the Government : May 20th, deputation of Liberal Members waited on Mr. Asquith (who, owing to the death of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, was now Prime Minister) to ask facilities for passage of Bill. Mr. Asquith, in replying, said that facilities could not be given, but that before the end of that Parliament an Electoral Reform Bill would be introduced, and it would then be open to urge enfranchisement of women by an amendment, which would not be opposed by the Government provided it was on democratic lines and that it had the strong support of the women of the country.—Miss Chrystal Macmillan and others claimed to vote in General Election of 1906 : claim refused finally in House of Lords in 1908 : Mrs. Garrett Anderson elected Mayor of Aldeburgh : first woman Mayor.—Suffrage granted to women in Norway.

1909.—Representation of the People Bill introduced by Hon. Geoffrey Howard, carried by a majority of 35 votes on March 19th ; no further progress.

1910.—Conciliation Bill introduced by Mr. D. J. Shackleton, with all the Suffrage Societies behind it, they having accepted it as a working compromise, was given a second reading by a majority of 110 : this Bill was different from all other Bills (which have sought to give women the vote on the same terms as men) in that it omitted the lodger, ownership, and University qualifications, and limited the franchise to women householders or £10 occupiers—estimated at one and a quarter millions: Bill referred to Committee of whole House by a majority of 145: further progress impossible because Government declined to give facilities: nevertheless, for the first time two full days had been given to a debate upon the question—There were held about 5,000 meetings in support of the Bill in the country: Albert Hall was twice filled by different Suffrage societies, and huge open-air demonstrations held in Hyde Park, Trafalgar Square, and also in the provinces.—The Australian Senate passed the following resolution on November 17th:—"That this Senate is of opinion that the extension of the suffrage to the women of Australia for States and Commonwealth Parliaments on the same terms as men, has had beneficial results. It has led to the more orderly conduct of elections, and at the last Federal Elections, the women's vote in the majority of the States showed a greater proportionate increase than that cast by men. It has given a greater prominence to legislation, particularly affecting women and children, although the women have not taken up such questions to the exclusion of others of wider significance. In matters of defence and Imperial concern they have proved themselves as far-seeing and discriminating as men. Because the reform has brought nothing but good, though disaster was freely prophesied, we respectfully urge that all nations enjoying representative Government would be well advised in granting votes for women."—Parliament dissolved and another General Election occurred: Liberals back in power.—Black Friday, Nov. 13th, 1910.

1911.—Press boycott broken down. The Standard introduces "Woman's Platform"—Conciliation Committee re-formed and another Women's Suffrage Bill, with new title and certain modifications, designed to meet objections to 1910 Bill drafted: Its title altered to admit free amendment and the £10 occupation qualification omitted to meet objections raised by Mr. Lloyd George, Mr. Churchill, and others. Passed second reading after 167 majority had been obtained against its rejection. Liberal members petitioned Prime Minister for facilities.—May 29th:

The foundation of the House of Selfridge is its customers' confidence.

Chancellor of the Exchequer announced no facilities for 1911; facilities promised for 1912.—Suffrage granted to women in California.

1912.—Conciliation Bill rejected by 14 votes. Mr. Snowden's Suffrage amendment to Irish Home Rule Bill lost by 173 votes.—Mr. Lansbury resigns seat to contest Bow and Bromley as candidate for Woman Suffrage.—Unionist opponent returned with majority of 751 in November.—Extensive window-smashing campaign carried out in London in March by Militants, for which over 100 persons, including Mr. and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, were imprisoned. Miss Christabel Pankhurst escaped by crossing to Paris. Later, several women convicted of attempted arson. Towards the end of the year many letters in postboxes destroyed by Militants, who poured in injurious fluid. Several convictions.—In autumn, differences on matters of policy occurred between Mr. and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, on the one hand, and Mrs. and Miss Pankhurst, on the other, resulting in the former leaving the Women's Social and Political Union.—Women's march from Edinburgh to London.—Three more American States—Kansas, Arizona, and Oregon—enfranchised their women.—Defeat experienced in Ohio, Wisconsin, and Michigan.—Women's Enfranchisement Bill passed through Swedish Lower House, but rejected in Upper House by 28 votes, all Conservatives against it.

1913 (January).—Women refused admission to the Bar. As we go to Press the Franchise Bill is withdrawn in consequence of the Speaker's ruling that if amendments admitting women to the Suffrage are passed it will become a new Bill and will have to be re-introduced. Facilities for Woman Suffrage Bill promised for next session. Fresh outbreak of militancy in consequence; Mrs. Despard, Mrs. Drummond and others arrested and imprisoned—all Societies now appeal for Government measure.

[We are indebted to the excellent little production, the Women's Suffrage Diary and Handbook, for assistance in the compilation of the foregoing].

Fill the jar with the fruit, and pour in enough cold water to quite cover it. Put on the rubber ring and the glass cap, and partly screw on the metal ring. Place the jars thus filled in cold water, seeing that they are immersed nearly up to the shoulders, the lid is put on and the thermometer inserted through the special opening in the lid. Apply heat and allow the water to reach the required temperature which can be seen at a glance. Lift out the special strainer, take a couple of cloths and screw down the metal rings as tightly as possible, and when the jars are cold it will be found that the glass caps are firmly secured by atmospheric pressure. This can be proved by removing the rings. The only object in doing so is to see that there is perfect closure. Vaseline the inside of the metal bands before closing finally, to facilitate their removal when required for use.

The Jules Jar is made in 3 sizes, about 19 ozs., 34 ozs., and 65 ozs. water capacity.

BE CERTAIN you get THE JULES JAR. It is made in WHITE FLINT GLASS and fit for any table.

herself disqualified by a new regulation as to height. After her marriage she returned to Manchester, and was living there when the arrest and imprisonment of Christabel Pankhurst and Annie Kenney, in October, 1905, aroused her interest in the W.S.P.U., which she promptly joined. Early in 1906 she came to London, and was arrested in Downing Street, in March, for an attempt to interview Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, then Prime Minister. In December, 1906, she was again arrested and sent to prison for a fortnight for attempting to force her way into the House of Commons. On her release she was appointed an organiser of the W.S.P.U. and since then has taken a leading part in organising all the great demonstrations, processions, and pageants held by the Union in London and Scotland, and has become widely known to the public as General Drummond. In 1908 Mrs. Drummond was again arrested in company with Mrs. and Miss Pankhurst for attempting to "rush" the House of Commons; she was sentenced to three months' imprisonment, but was released before the end of her sentence. She has since then worked all over England and Scotland, but is particularly associated with London. She is a very forcible and popular speaker. Tel.: 2724 Holborn. FORD, Miss I. O. Is a member of the Executive of the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies, and is one of its best-known speakers, both for her Irish wit and for her close knowledge of the conditions of the working classes. She was first engaged in active Trade Union work about 23 years ago, owing to a strike in Leeds and one in Bradford—the velvet and plush makers' strike. She felt it was a real "call" to understand the conditions of the workers' lives. She consequently became known to the Trade Unionists in Yorkshire, and has had the great advantage of working with many of their best leaders in many strikes, and of going to the textile International Congresses to represent the women textile workers of Yorkshire. She has, therefore, had full opportunities for studying the conditions of women workers in other countries. "It is far better," she says, "to understand these things from the actual workers' own standpoint, sitting in back parlours of little inns, counting out strike pay, listening to everyone and everything, and being taught many things. In former days, it was difficult to find other rooms to rest in or to use for conferences." Miss Ford ran a women's benefit club for a few years, was President of the Tailoresses' Union, which she helped to start; is a Parish Councillor and a Life Member of the Leeds Trade Council, and is now an honorary member of the Leeds Wholesale Clothiers' Union, and of the Yorkshire Textile Union; seeing so little was done for the industrial women, she joined the I.L.P. in 1893, when she began active Women's Suffrage work. She sat on the N.A.C. of the I.L.P. for four years, but now puts Women's Suffrage before party. Miss Ford believes that the working man's home should be made the centre of all that is beautiful and ennobling. She has given practical expression to this conviction by herself teaching the piano to many working people. She has also written three novels.

PANKHURST, MRS. EMMELINE. Society: Hon. Treasurer W.S.P.U.; born at Manchester; married, 1879, to Dr. Richard Marsden Pankhurst; three surviving children—Christabel, Sylvia, and Adela; Mrs. Pankhurst (née Goulden) was born in Manchester on the anniversary of the storming of the Bastille, her father was a Radical politician, and her grandfather narrowly escaped with his life at the great Franchise riot of Peterloo, in 1819; she was educated in Paris, and in 1879 she married Dr. Pankhurst, who had been a member of the first Women's Suffrage Society, founded by John Stuart Mill. A little later she was placed on the Executive Committee of the only existing Women's Suffrage Society and also on the Committee for Promoting the Married Women's Property Bill, which was originally drafted by Dr. Pankhurst and subsequently became law. In 1883 she assisted her husband when he stood as Independent Radical candidate for Manchester, and two years later as Radical candidate for Rotherhithe. In 1886, Mrs. Pankhurst came to London, joined the Fabian Society and the Holborn Women's Liberal Association. She remained a Liberal until 1892, when she joined the Independent Labour Party and returned to Manchester. In the same year she stood as Independent Labour candidate for the Manchester School Board and was first of the defeated candidates. The following year she was elected head of the poll for the Poor Law Guardians of Manchester, and served in that capacity for five years. In 1889, on the death of her husband, she was appointed Registrar of Births and Deaths, and in the following year was elected as Trades Council nominee of the School Board; twice served on the National Administrative Council of the Independent Labour Party, and is immensely popular in the Union. In 1903, together with her daughter Christabel, she founded the Women's Social and Political Union, was arrested on February 13th, 1908, for heading a deputation of thirteen women to the House of Commons and served a term of six weeks' imprisonment in the 2nd

Division, i.e., as an ordinary criminal. In October of the same year she was charged with inciting to riot, and, together with her daughter, Christabel, and Mrs. Drummond, was arrested and tried in Bow Street Police Court, and, after a trial lasting three days, she was sentenced to three months' imprisonment, but was released a few weeks before the expiration of her sentence. Mrs. Pankhurst has taken part in nearly every by-election to which the W.S.P.U. has sent representatives. She is a powerful debater and speaker. In October, 1909, she conducted a very successful lecturing tour in the United States and Canada, and wherever she went she had a splendid reception, and did a great deal towards showing the Americans the truth about the Women's Movement in England. In November 18th of 1910, she led a deputation to the Prime Minister, and though she succeeded in reaching the door of the House of Commons the Prime Minister refused to see her. On the following Tuesday, November 22nd, she again marched at the head of about 400 women to see the Prime Minister. She was arrested in Downing Street and was brought up at Bow Street the following morning, to find that no charge was brought against her and that she was dismissed. On March 1st, 1912, in the course of the great window-breaking demonstration, Mrs. Pankhurst, accompanied by Mrs. Tuke and Mrs. Marshall, drove to 10, Downing Street and threw a stone through one of the windows; for this she and her companions were arrested and sentenced to two months' imprisonment. On March 5th warrants were issued for the arrest of the leaders on a charge of conspiracy, and Mrs. Pankhurst was charged in prison. On April 4th, at the end of the magisterial inquiry into the charge, which was heard at Bow Street, the rest of her sentence was remitted in order that she might be free to prepare her defence against the graver accusation. On May 22nd she was sentenced at the Central Criminal Court to nine months' imprisonment in the 2nd Division on the charge of conspiracy. On June 10th the Home Secretary announced that she and the other leaders would be transferred to the 1st Division; but, in spite of this, on June 19th, she joined in the hunger strike, commenced to win the removal of the rank and file Suffragist prisoners to the 1st Division. After a feeble attempt to feed her by force she was released on June 24th. On her return from a holiday, necessitated by the state of weakness to which her prison treatment had reduced her, Mrs. Pankhurst became Hon. Treasurer when the Union was re-organised in October, 1912. Publications: Various pamphlets and articles, and contributions to the W.S.P.U. official organ, The Suffragette. Tel.: 2724 Holborn. Address: Lincoln's Inn House, Kingsway, W.C.

PANKHURST, MISS CHRISTABEL, LL.B. Society: W.S.P.U. (Editor of "The Suffragette," the official organ of the W.S.P.U.; appears every Friday); born at Manchester; daughter of the late Richard Marsden Pankhurst, LL.D., barrister-at-law, and Mrs. Pankhurst; Imprisonments: Oct. 14th, 1905, seven days (first Suffrage arrest), Feb. 14th, 1907, seven days or 20s. fine; Oct. 24th, 1908, ten weeks' imprisonment; is the eldest daughter of her mother, the founder of the Women's Social and Political Union. Until the age of thirteen was educated at home, but then went to the Manchester High School, and at sixteen abroad to a school at Switzerland. Her father died when she was seventeen and she was then obliged to return to England, and assisted her mother by acting as deputy Registrar of Births and Deaths. She became a member of the Independent Labour Party, and commenced work for the Suffrage when she was about eighteen by sending Resolutions to the Conference, and assisting in getting them carried. In 1901 she was made a Member of the Executive Committee of the North of England Society for Women's Suffrage, and was also on the Committee of the Women's Manchester Trade Union Council. In October, 1903, she formed the Women's Social and Political Union, together with her mother, and carried Women's Suffrage resolutions on Trades Councils all over the country. The following year she applied to be admitted as a student at Lincoln's Inn, of which her father had been a member. On being refused, she spoke at the Union Society of London (the well-known legal Debating Society), on the question of the admission of women to the Bar, and carried the Society with her when it came to voting. She continued her law studies at Owen's College, Victoria University, Manchester, and in 1905 obtained a prize for International law. In October of the same year she initiated the present militant tactics of the W.S.P.U., by protesting against the persistent refusal of Sir Edward Grey (who it was thought exceedingly probable would be in the Liberal Cabinet about to be formed), to answer a question on Woman Suffrage, and as a consequence of her protest, was sent, together with Miss Annie Kenney, to prison. The following year she obtained her LL.B. degree, obtaining honours, and being placed at the head of the list with one man. Since that date the story of her life has been one with that of the Union of which she is the Organising Secretary. She has since been arrested, in February, 1907, when she served a term of a fortnight's imprisonment, and in October, 1908, together with her mother and Mrs. Flora Drummond, when she was arrested for inciting to "rush" the House of Commons. During the trial which ensued, she called as witnesses two Cabinet Ministers, the Home Secretary and the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and her masterly examination of them won the admiration of foes and friends alike. She was sentenced to ten weeks' imprisonment. She is a brilliant and popular speaker. When the authorities, after the great window-breaking demonstration of March, 1912, decided to arrest the leaders on a charge of conspiracy, Miss Pankhurst managed to elude the police by crossing to France, where as a political offender she was not extraditable. In September it was publicly announced that she was living in Paris, and directing the movement from that requires only Half the energy used to propel an ordinary punt ? That it is lighter than a skiff and can be lifted out of the water by two men, and housed under cover like a skiff ? There is no fear of shrinkage and leakage—the bugbear of the old style punt. The Clincher Dinghy Punt is built of selected mahogany bottom and sides, on our patent system, and is Light, Strong and Water-tight. The Clincher Dinghy Punt will last for years longer and costs less for upkeep than the old style punt that has to be kept afloat, in order to keep water-tight, and is exposed to all weathers.

Our Patent Clincher Dinghy Punt is the lightest, strongest and smartest punt of her class that has yet been invented. Absolutely water-tight and weighs but one-third the weight of an ordinary punt. Can be sculled, punted, or paddled faster than a Dinghy or a Punt, is safer and more comfortable.

Cash price, complete five coats varnish, gold lines, three cushions, sculls, rowlocks, pole, paddle, etc., 24 guineas, or twelve payments of £2 7s. a month, inclusive of twelve months' storage.

No. 1. The Poodle Woman,

By ANNESLEY KENEALY.

Author of "Thus saith Mrs. Grundy," etc., etc.

Crown 8vo., Cloth Gilt 6/-.

This Series consists of strong, popular, and non-political love stories and industrial life dramas. "The Poodle Woman," for instance, is a powerful living picture of the repression of a woman's talents—a vivid story showing how the injustices of the existing laws affect women as wives, mothers and workers.

Further volumes of the series will be published during 1918 and subsequent years.

TWO USEFUL SERIES.
